—Among certain Eskimos bad temper is considered a sign of being possessed by a devil, lying is a crime punished by death, and marriage is compulsory.

—According to some physicians it is inadvisable to disturb a biting mosquito, for the reason that he first injects a poison to dilute the blood and then when the meal is over will suck the poison back again. Youth is a clean slate for parents to write on.

MODERN YOUTH IS DEFENDED BY OHIO EDUCATOR

Splendid Addresses Mark Dedication of New Pickaway Township School.

Defense of modern youth was made by Prof. J. L. Clifton, of Columbus, state superintendent of public instruction, in an address Wednesday at the afternoon ceremonies in connection with the dedication of the $58,000 addition to the Pickaway township school building, which was completed recently.

Prof. Clifton praised the young people of today and asserted that there was no truth in the statements which he had heard regarding the lack of respect and refinement of the American youth.

"What we do is largely conventional and it is only the evidence of the naturalness of the American youth which so excites folks today," Prof. Clifton said.

Pickaway Pleased Residents of Pickaway township were complimented by Prof. Clifton for their forward looking program in education.

"There is no such thing as an inferiority complex if we meet our problems as men," Prof. Clifton declared, asserting that in all the state of Ohio he had found that the competency of the rural residents was just as evident among the various students in university life as among those from the city.

Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum college at New Concord, O., was the principal speaker at the evening ceremonies. He asked this question: "What does it mean, this building of brick, wood and stone?" Dr. Montgomery drew an excellent parallel in contrasting the building with the human body which houses the best and worst in man. He said the new school building represents the thought and care of the people or the community for the welfare of its youth.

Leadership Stressed A better outlook on life, will be the heritage of the young people, Dr. Montgomery said. After all, he asserted, if there are not capable leaders who have a vision, who can see in each boy and girl possibilities of a Lincoln, a Webster or a Luther, the educational program would fail.

Dr. Montgomery also stressed the fact that the average American father and mother little realize how important the first six years of the child's life are. Impressions gained then are the most lasting of all, he said, as the average person is little influenced in later life. He stated that an eminent eastern divine recently said that what he was had been determined largely by the first four years of his life.

What the school means to the community was outlined in an address during the evening program by M. C. Warren, superintendent of the Pickaway county schools.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the architects, Stribling and Lum, of Columbus, the building was accepted by the Pickaway township board of education through A. C. Cameron, superintendent.

Contractor Speaks Frank Marion, representing the contractors, Barnes and Marion, of Circleville, praised the township for erecting such a fine building, which he said he expected to stand as an example of good workmanship. He also praised the work of Lyle and Marion, who did the plumbing, and Fissell Brothers, who did the electrical work.

Music for the ceremonies was provided by Stout's orchestra, of Lancaster, and by the high school glee club, which sang four numbers.

The new gymnasium of the school will be dedicated Friday night with a basketball game between the Alumni and the high school players.

PLAN NEW TRIAL

DAYTON, O., Dec. 15—(INS)—Preparations for a new trial for Mrs. Grace Walker, 30, charged with manslaughter as a result of an auto accident last Dec. 21 in which William York was killed were under way here today. The jury which tried her case here this week disagreed and was discharged.

OPPOSE DANCE LIMIT

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 15—Ohio State university students are strongly opposed to the recent ruling of the school that all college dances must close at midnight, a vote taken in fraternities and sororities showed. Out of a total of 1848 votes cast, 1792 were against the rule.

New Press To Be Installed By The Circleville Herald

The Circleville Herald is to have a new press. Installation of the new press to turn out the newly consolidated Circleville daily will be made as soon as possible and then Circleville and Pickaway county will have a real newspaper, clearly printed and on time each day.

Realizing that this field merits a real newspaper, properly printed and delivered early in the afternoon. The Circleville Publishing Company made this important decision today and will install the most modern printing press of the day at a cost of thousands of dollars.

This costly investment clearly indicates the faith the publishers have in the Circleville and Pickaway county of tomorrow as well as today.

The new press will be thoroughly modern in each and every detail. It will print The Circleville Herald at a greater rate of speed, turning out the newspaper's 3,000 circulation in exactly 45 minutes. By going to press at 2:30 p. m., The Circleville Herald will then be completely printed and off the press by 3:15 p. m., when newsboys will start delivering it to the homes in the city.

The press will be installed as soon as possible. Until then the old press, which is 17 years old, has been overhauled by Chicago experts and will continue to serve, we hope, until the new press has been put into operation.

An addition to The Circleville Publishing Company's building will also be constructed shortly to give more room for the expansion program which has been outlined for the newspaper.

JUDGE CURTAIN IS REVERSED IN SCHOOL CASE

Circleville Township Pupils Must Attend School In City, Court Rules.

The Court of Appeals reversed the judgment of the Pickaway County common pleas court in the Sunnyside school case and the pupils of that portion of Circleville township will have to attend the schools in this city as they have been doing since Sunnyside was abandoned.

The case was won by Charles H. Moody, the relator, when he brought action against the Board of Education of Circleville township rural school district, several weeks ago in common pleas court, in a mandamus suit. Judge Clarence Curtain ruled that the board must open the school, and issued a peremptory writ of mandamus.

The Court of Appeals in its opinion given on Dec. 9, held that it was the duty of the board of education to inquire into the validity of the petition, and that they had the right to deny the prayer of the petitioner, when they found that two of the signers, Fred Zwicker and Mrs. Mary J. Walters, had no right to sign as "guardians" when these two signers were not the legal guardians of the children they signed for. The Court of Appeals also held contrary to the opinion of the court of common pleas that a petitioner, J. C. Crubb, had the right to ask for a withdrawal of his name from the petition before action on the petition had been taken by the local board of education.

The opinion of the Court of Appeals is a decided confirmation of the action of the board of education in their effort to give the children of Circleville township the best school advantages.

Prosecuting Attorney E. A. Brown and Fred P. Griner represented the board of education of Circleville township, and Adkins and Adkins represented Charles H. Moody.

The Court of Appeals upheld the sentence of the lower court in the case of John Seymour and Beman Imler, charged with stealing chickens. I. F. Snyder represented the prisoners. Frank Redfern and E. A. Brown the state.

COLD WAVE, SNOW HEADING FOR OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 15—(UP)—A general cold wave, bringing snow in some sections, will envelope Ohio tonight or tomorrow, the United States weather bureau at Washington advises today.

Temperatures will begin falling tonight, the weather bureau said, "with much colder" predicted for Friday.

ATTEND ART EXHIBIT

All the pupils of the High street building Thursday morning visited the collection of art pictures now on exhibition at the auditorium of the high school.

Santa Claus Will Come to This City For Week's Visit

Arrangements have been completed by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce for a week's visit to Circleville of Santa Claus, according to the announcement Thursday by Karl J. Herrmann, chairman of the committee which solicited the personal appearance here of Kriss Kingle.

Santa will appear on the streets in the business section of Circleville each afternoon and evening until Christmas, beginning Saturday, to receive the requests of children and adults for Christmas gifts.

Circleville was finally chosen by Santa Claus for his personal visit because of the well stocked stores here in which he can find any gift asked of him. He will be especially glad to meet the boys and girls of the city and Pickaway county, who are asked to remind him of what they want for Christmas.

RAILROAD MERGER MAY EFFECT CITY

Circleville Will Be On Great Trunk Line If Plans For C. and O. Succeed.

The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, a division of which passes through Circleville, eventually may become the central line of a great new railroad system, including the Erie and Pere Marquette lines, if the interstate commission approves, according to reports.

Plans already made looking to that end have not been sanctioned, but the commission explained its opposition was based less upon the physical aspects than upon the financial, which provided for issuance of nearly $60,000,000 in common stock to acquire control of the other roads.

The proposed system would be made then 7000 miles of road, with Chicago as a local point and New York and Norfolk as seaboard ends of the main line tracks.

Earnings of the Chesapeake and Ohio have doubled in a decade, reaching a peak last year, but officials have forecast a lower net yearly until 1930.

More than four-fifths of the freight traffic originates on the company's lines, about 85 percent being bituminous coal.

Circleville may yet be placed on the map of a great trunk line.

CAR BARNS GUTTED IN STRATFORD FIRE

DELAWARE, O., Dec. 15—(INS)—Fire of undetermined origin gutted the old power house and the car barns of the C. D. & M. traction company at Stratford early today.

All the cars were removed from the building in time to save them from damage but the building itself was completely destroyed. No estimate of the loss was available this morning but it was expected to be heavy.

The fire department from Delaware responded to the call and prevented the flames from spreading.

LINDBERGH IDOL OF MEXICO CITY, WILL FLY BACK

Trip To Cuba Is Contemplated By Lone Eagle After Latest Air Exploit.

MEXICO, CITY, Dec. 15—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will fly back to the United States. This time he will make the journey between the two countries in several hops.

These plans were announced today by the "Lone Eagle" who has become the idol of Mexico, virtually every city having set up a clamor to see the famous flyer.

The trip to Cuba is still to be decided upon. If he makes it, Col. Lindbergh said, it would probably be made out of Washington. He said he had not decided "yet."

Col. Lindbergh awoke today in the home of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who took him in hand.

Greatest Reception

The city still reverberated today from the lusty "vivas" which acknowledged Col. Lindbergh with acclaim—the greatest reception ever given a foreigner in the Republic.

A special embassy staff recruited today was necessary to handle the flyer's telegrams.

For the daring flyer, history was repeating itself. As was the case when he accomplished his remarkable flight from New York to Paris, the people upon whom he glided down from the skies have him their hearts.

And, it was in Paris, after his long flight, Col. Lindbergh was taken in hand by the American ambassador and got his much-needed sleep under the roof of the American embassy.

Crowds Relieved

When the flying colonel finally descended from the blue and landed gracefully at Val Buena field, literally millions of persons were relieved of a fear that he suffered mishap. For, according to the time limit he had set himself, he was about an hour late.

But the famous team of "We" was NOT to blame. Talking to newspapermen of his flight he said:

"The fog was to blame for my being late. The weather was O. K. as far as the Mexican border, but I ran into fog as I mounted over the foothills of the Sierras."

"After I left Tampico I lost my route and had to be guided solely by compass. I could not help drifting to the west and seem to have followed a large detour, going even farther west than Toluca—as far as Salavatierra and Morelia anyway—and it was the sign of the Toluca railway station that gave me my first idea of my real location. But of course it is impossible to give a complete story of the trip in a few words."

Hugged by Calles

After being assured that his plane would be absolutely safe, possibly recollecting at the moment a similar scene in Paris when another huge crowd, anxious to greet him, almost wrecked his "Partner," Lindbergh was taken to the presidential box.

There President Calles, not content with greeting him with a handshake, threw both his arms about the young aviator and impulsively hugged him.

Throughout the evening telegrams of congratulation from President Coolidge down through officialdom and just "plain folks" poured into the embassy.

One of the first things Lindbergh did when he reached the embassy was to request that a long distance telephone call be put in for his mother. When the connection was complete, he said: "We made it, mother. I have already been presented with a fine Mexican sombrero."

STEAL CHRISTMAS TREES

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 15—(INS)—Police here today were searching for thieves who are said to have stolen a veritable forest of Christmas trees. There were 25 six-foot according to the report made by the trees in the lot, a total value of $50, owner, John Amicon, to police.

SEEK WOMAN'S ATTACKER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 15—Authorities here today were continuing a search for a masked man who yesterday attacked Mrs. Charles Feyh, 27, and her son, Charles, 3. No clues to the man's identity had been found. The attack on Mrs. Feyh was made with a lead mallet, after which the victim was carried away in an automobile.

Cause of War?

Mrs. O. O. Hammond (above), confidential secretary to Governor Henry M. Johnston of Oklahoma, is said to constitute one of the reasons underlying attempt of Legislature to impeach executive.

M'GINNIS YOUTH INJURED BY AUTO

Thrown From Bicycle By Collision, Lad Suffers Concussion of Brain.

When John McGinnis, 10-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. McGinnis, of North Court street, borrowed the bicycle of his brother, Francis, Wednesday afternoon, he rode into his fourth collision with an automobile.

As a result he was severely injured about the head, suffering concussion of the brain and a probable slight fracture of the skull.

The accident occurred at the West Main street entrance to the alley between Scioto and Court streets when the lad and the driver of an automobile attempted to enter the alley at the same time.

According to witnesses a rear wheel of the automobile struck the rear wheel of the bicycle, throwing young McGinnis on his head.

The autoist, whose name was not learned, carried the boy, who was unconscious, into the office of Dr. B. B. Bales. While he was receiving treatment, he suddenly recovered consciousness, jumped from the table on which he was lying and ran home.

His parents learned of the accident through his brother and Wednesday night they had to summon Dr. O. H. Dunton, the family physician, when the boy became unconscious.

Thursday he was reported to be improving and said he remembered nothing of the accident nor running home from the office of Dr. Bales.

PEACE IN MINING APPEARS DOOMED

Labor Secretary Davis Admits Government Efforts In Coal Strike Seem Futile.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(INS)—The effort of secretary of labor to get 100,000 striking miners back into the mines before Christmas in the highly important, bituminous coal fields of central and western Pennsylvania, Ohio and northern West Virginia appeared doomed today.

While the joint committee of three mine workers and three operators met again today with Davis, any agreement that may be reached will have no effect on the big operators, who have steadfastly refused to join any conference to end the strike that has been in effect for eight months.

Davis practically admitted defeat when he said "it is useless for small operators to attend any conference unless the major operators attend and agree to remedial measures."

"No conference of operators and miners from a limited territory can solve the problems of the entire industry," he added. "Neither the president of the United States, nor any other government official has the power to compel the industry to cure its own ills, or meet with any agency set up for that purpose."

NUN ALSO DIES AS ORPHANAGE IS DESTROYED

Boys and Girls Caught By Falling Walls As Heroic Rescue Efforts Fail.

QUEBEC, Dec. 15—(INS)—Twenty-six children and one nun are known to have perished and thirty-three other children are feared to have lost their lives in a fire which completely destroyed the St. Charles Orphan asylum here early today. The bodies of the nun and twenty-six children were recovered, and the other thirty-three are missing.

The floors of the building collapsed and the trapped victims were buried in the flaming wreckage. Firemen were unable to penetrate the smoldering ruins this morning to recover additional bodies.

The building housed 560 children and forty nuns. Several of the injured were taken to hospital.

Feats of Heroism

Firemen, police and nuns performed extraordinary feats of heroism in rescuing children from the fire. Under the direction of the nuns, who remained calm in the emergency, many of the children marched out of the building in an orderly manner. Others were carried down ladders to safety before the building collapsed.

The fire started in the basement, police said, gained headway on the second floor and mushroomed through the building.

The flames spread rapidly. The entire staff of the institution was quickly marshaled into a rescue force. The alarm was given by a nun, but many of the children in certain sections of the building found escape cut off. They undoubtedly perished while groping their way through fire and smoke to the stairways and other exits.

Caught Under Walls

The asylum is operated by the Good Shepherd sisters for children of ages ranging from five to sixteen. All of the children were not orphans. Some were sent there by their parents to be educated.

The fire started shortly after 11 o'clock last night and the embers were still smoldering this morning.

The burning walls and floors collapsed so suddenly that despite the presence of mind of the sisters in charge and the fine behavior of the children, it was impossible to escape from a great tragedy. The firemen and nuns risked their lives in saving those who were rescued.

A large crowd which gathered outside the building heard the screams of the children as the walls collapsed.

Attendants Missing

Two elderly persons who lived in the asylum are believed to have perished. They were employed at the institution.

The children who were saved were given shelter at the mother house of the Good Shepherd and in private homes nearby. The horror of the tragedy unnerved the youthful survivors, some of whom cried bitterly for their lost companions.

Some of the parents who had placed their children in the orphanage to be educated learned of the tragedy and rushed to the scene. Those who learned that their loved ones were dead or missing rent the air with their cries, while those whose children had been saved rushed to their little ones and joyfully embraced them.

The orphanage is an old historic building and a landmark in the city. It was a large four-story stone structure and was built in 1832.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 15—(UP)—The three alienists appointed by Judge Chester R. Shook to inquire into the sanity or insanity of George Remus today reported that they believed him sane on October 6, the day he shot and killed his wife, Imogene.

Circleville Will Be On Great Trunk Line If Plans For C. and O. Succeed.

The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, a division of which passes through Circleville, eventually may become the central line of a great new railroad system, including the Erie and Pere Marquette lines, if the interstate commission approves, according to reports.

Plans already made looking to that end have not been sanctioned, but the commission explained its opposition was based less upon the physical aspects than upon the financial, which provided for issuance of nearly $60,000,000 in common stock to acquire control of the other roads.

The proposed system would be made then 7000 miles of road, with Chicago as a local point and New York and Norfolk as seaboard ends of the main line tracks.

Earnings of the Chesapeake and Ohio have doubled in a decade, reaching a peak last year, but officials have forecast a lower net yearly until 1930.

More than four-fifths of the freight traffic originates on the company's lines, about 85 percent being bituminous coal.

Circleville may yet be placed on the map of a great trunk line.

CAR BARNS GUTTED IN STRATFORD FIRE

DELAWARE, O., Dec. 15—(INS)—Fire of undetermined origin gutted the old power house and the car barns of the C. D. & M. traction company at Stratford early today.

All the cars were removed from the building in time to save them from damage but the building itself was completely destroyed. No estimate of the loss was available this morning but it was expected to be heavy.

The fire department from Delaware responded to the call and prevented the flames from spreading.

LINDBERGH IDOL OF MEXICO CITY; WILL FLY BACK

Trip To Cuba Is Contemplated By Lone Eagle After Latest Air Exploit.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will fly back to the United States. This time he will make the journey between the two countries in several hops.

These plans were announced today by the "Lone Eagle" who has become the idol of Mexico, virtually every city having set up a clamor to see the famous flyer.

The trip to Cuba is still to be decided upon. If he makes it, Col. Lindbergh said it would probably be made out of Washington. He said he had not decided "yet."

Col. Lindbergh awoke today in the home of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who took him in hand.

Greatest Reception
The city still reverberated today from the lusty "vivas" which acknowledged Col. Lindbergh with acclaim—the greatest reception ever given a foreigner in the Republic.

A special embassy staff recruited today was necessary to handle the flyer's telegrams.

For the daring young flyer, history was repeating itself. As was the case when he accomplished his remarkable flight from New York to Paris, the people upon whom he glided down from the skies have him their hearts.

And, it was in Paris, after his long flight, Col. Lindbergh was taken in hand by the American ambassador and got his much-needed sleep under the roof of the American embassy.

Crowds Relieved
When the flying colonel finally descended from the blue and landed gracefully at Val Buena field, literally millions of persons were relieved of a fear that he suffered mishap. For, according to the time limit he had set himself, he was about an hour late.

But the famous team of "We" was NOT to blame. Talking to newspapermen of his flight he said: "The fog was to blame for my being late. The weather was O. K. as far as the Mexican border, but I ran into fog as I mounted over the foothills of the Sierras."

"After I left Tampico I lost my route and had to be guided solely by compass. I could not help drifting to the west and seem to have followed a large detour, going even farther west than Toluca—as far as Salavatierra and Morelia anyway—and it was the sign of the Toluga railway station that gave me my first idea of my real location. But of course it is impossible to give a complete story of the trip in a few words."

Hugged by Cables
After being assured that his plane would be absolutely safe, possibly recollecting at the moment a similar scene in Paris when another huge crowd, anxious to greet him, almost wrecked his "Partner," Lindbergh was taken to the presidential box.

There President Calles, not content with greeting him with a handshake, threw both his arms about the young aviator and impulsively hugged him.

Throughout the evening telegrams of congratulation from President Coolidge down through officialdom and just "plain folks" poured into the embassy.

One of the first things Lindbergh did when he reached the embassy was to request that a long distance telephone call be put in for his mother. When the connection was complete, he said: "We made it, mother. I have already been presented with a fine Mexican sombrero."

STEAL CHRISTMAS TREES

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 15—(INS)—Police here today were searching for thieves who are said to have stolen a veritable forest of Christmas trees. There were 25 six-foot according to the report made by the trees in the lot, a total value of $50, owner, John Amicon, to police.

SEEK WOMAN'S ATTACKER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 15—Authorities here today were continuing a search for a masked man who yesterday attacked Mrs. Charles Feyh, 27, and her son, Charles, 3. No clues to the man's identity had been found. The attack on Mrs. Feyh was made with a lead mallet, after which the victim was carried away in an automobile.

M'GINNIS YOUTH INJURED BY AUTO

Thrown From Bicycle By Collision, Lad Suffers Concussion of Brain.

When John McGinnis, 10-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. McGinnis, of North Court street, borrowed the bicycle of his brother, Francis, Wednesday afternoon, he rode into his fourth collision with an automobile. As a result he was severely injured about the head, suffering concussion of the brain and a probable slight fracture of the skull.

The accident occurred at the West Main street entrance to the alley between Scioto and Court streets when the lad and the driver of an automobile attempted to enter the alley at the same time.

According to witnesses a rear wheel of the automobile struck the rear wheel of the bicycle, throwing young McGinnis on his head.

The autoist, whose name was not learned, carried the boy who was unconscious, into the office of Dr. B. B. Bales. While he was receiving treatment, he suddenly recovered consciousness, jumped from the table on which he was lying and ran home.

His parents learned of the accident through his brother and Wednesday night they had to summon Dr. O. H. Dunton, the family physician, when the boy became unconscious.

Thursday he was reported to be improving and said he remembered nothing of the accident nor running home from the office of Dr. Bales.

PEACE IN MINING APPEARS DOOMED

Labor Secretary Davis Admits Government Efforts In Coal Strike Seem Futile.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(INS)—The effort of secretary of labor to get 100,000 striking miners back into the mines before Christmas in the highly important bituminous coal fields of central and western Pennsylvania, Ohio and northern West Virginia appeared doomed today.

While the joint committee of three mine workers and three operators met again today with Davis, any agreement that may be reached will have no effect on the big operators, who have steadfastly refused to join any conference to end the strike that has been in effect for eight months.

Davis practically admitted defeat when he said "it is useless for small operators to attend any conference unless the major operators attend and agree to remedial measures."

"No conference of operators and miners from a limited territory can solve the problems of the entire industry," he added. "Neither the president of the United States, nor any other government official has the power to compel the industry to cure its own ills, or meet with any agency set up for that purpose."

NUN ALSO DIES AS ORPHANAGE IS DESTROYED

Boys and Girls Caught By Falling Walls As Heroic Rescue Efforts Fail.

QUEBEC, Dec. 15—(INS)—Twenty-six children and one nun are known to have perished and thirty-three other children are feared to have lost their lives in a fire which completely destroyed the St. Charles orphan asylum here early today. The bodies of the nun and twenty-six children were recovered, and the other thirty-three are missing.

The floors of the building collapsed and the trapped victims were buried in the flaming wreckage. Firemen were unable to penetrate the smoldering ruins this morning to recover additional bodies.

The building housed 500 children and forty nuns. Several of the injured were taken to hospital.

Facts of Heroism
Firemen, police and nuns performed extraordinary feats of heroism in rescuing children from the fire. Under the direction of the nuns, who remained calm in the emergency, many of the children marched out of the building in an orderly manner. Others were carried down ladders to safety before the building collapsed. The fire started in the basement, police said, gained headway on the second floor and mushroomed through the building.

The flames spread rapidly. The entire staff of the institution was quickly marshalled into a rescue force. The alarm was given by a nun, but many of the children in certain sections of the building found escape cut off. They undoubtedly perished while groping their way through fire and smoke to the stairways and other exits.

Caught Under Walls
The asylum is operated by the Good Shepherd sisters for children of ages ranging from five to sixteen. All of the children were not orphans. Some were sent there by their parents to be educated.

The fire started shortly after 11 o'clock last night and the embers were still smoldering this morning. The burning walls and floors collapsed so suddenly that despite the presence of mind of the sisters in charge and the fine behavior of the children, it was impossible to escape from a great tragedy. The firemen and nuns risked their lives in saving those who were rescued.

A large crowd which gathered outside the building heard the screams of the children as the walls collapsed.

Attendants Missing
Two elderly persons who lived in the asylum are believed to have perished. They were employed at the institution.

The children who were saved were given shelter at the mother house of the Good Shepherd and in private homes nearby. The horror of the tragedy unnerved the youthful survivors, some of whom cried bitterly for their lost companions.

Some of the parents who had placed their children in the orphanage to be educated learned of the tragedy and rushed to the scene. Those who learned that their loved ones were dead or missing rent the air with their cries, while those whose children had been saved rushed to their little ones and joyfully embraced them.

The orphanage is an old historic building and a landmark in the city. It was a large four-story stone structure and was built in 1832.

HUNDREDS DEAD IN PACIFICATION OF NICARAGUA

U. S. Marines Face Seething Insurgency In Northern Half of Republic.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Pacification of Nicaragua is proving about the hardest job the United States has ever tackled.

Despite the optimistic statements issued from time to time by staff and navy department officials the northern half of the central American Republic is still, after a seven-month campaign, seething with insurgency and general disorder.

To date the pacification has cost the lives of more than eight hundred Nicaraguans, according to figures shown by 714 Nicaraguans reports, while several hundred others have been seriously wounded in clashes with the American interventionists and native guards. In the last month there have been at least 86 known deaths among the natives.

Based on announcements by the marine command in Managua and by officials here, minimum casualty figures show 714 Nicaraguans to have been slain, 152 killed or wounded 200 wounded in the period from May 15 to Dec. 11. At the same time seven marines and six native guardsmen have been killed and two marines wounded.

Records Incomplete
Recorded casualties among the Nicaraguans, who have been termed bandits by the state department, are not complete. Upon several occasions after skirmishes with the insurgent natives the marine command has declared that the extent of the casualties among the "bandits" could not be determined. Nor do these figures include the number of Nicaraguans who, lacking medical attention, have died from their wounds.

Early in October the casualty figures showed that upwards of 540 Nicaraguans had been killed. On Nov. 15, the toll was 628 killed, 187 killed or wounded, and 152 wounded. Since then the following clashes between natives and marines have taken place:

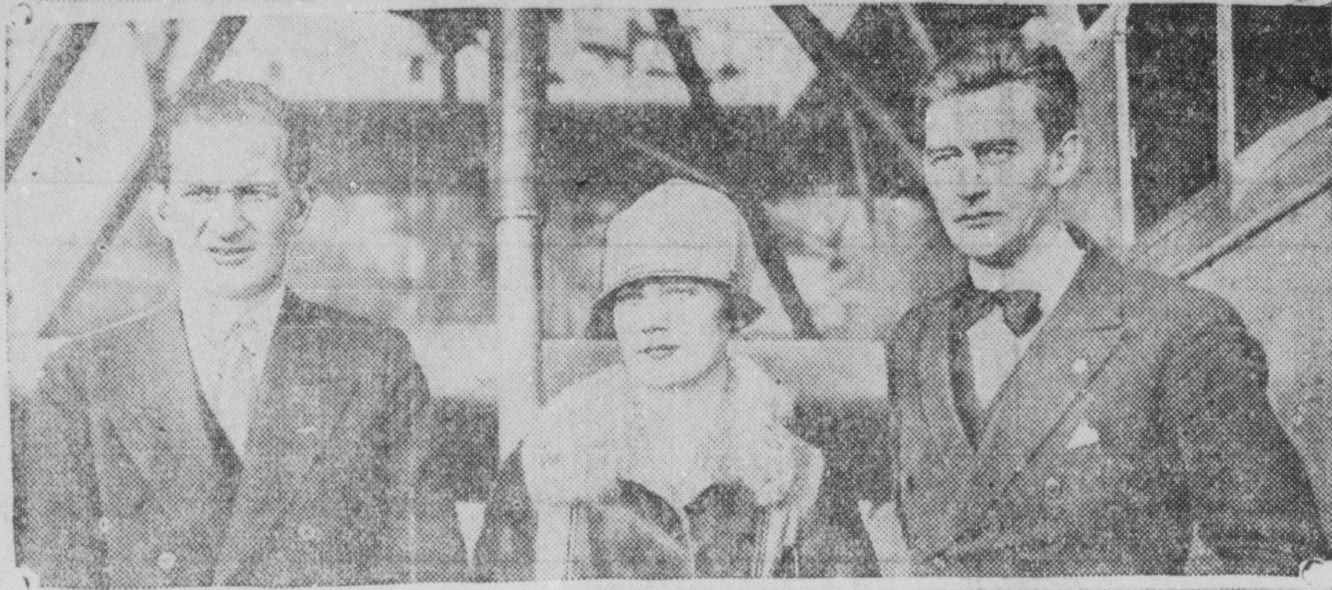

Casualties Listed
Nov. 21, near Telpaneca—3 Nicaraguans killed.

Nov. 23, Somoto—4 Nicaraguans killed; large number wounded; one marine wounded.

Nov. 25, Laguna—4 Nicaraguans killed; 7 wounded.

Nov. 26, Elchipote—37 Nicaraguans killed; unknown number wounded. (Originally four natives were reported to have fallen in this engagement, but that figure later was officially corrected by Col. L. M. Guick, marine commander.)

Dec. 5, Between Jicaro and San Fernando—Number of Nicaraguan casualties unknown; 2 native guardsmen killed.

Dec. 9, Antigua—20 Nicaraguans killed; 20 wounded.

Dec. 10, El Potrero—5 Nicaraguans killed several wounded.

Dec. 10, Somoto—3 Nicaraguans killed; 3 wounded.

Dec. 11, Santa Rosa—Nicaraguans killed; 3 wounded.

Dec. 11, Telpaneca—8 Nicaraguans killed; several wounded.

U. S. Airmen Killed
Included among the recent casualties were two marine airmen, Lieut. E. A. Thomas and Sergt. Frank Dowdell, who were captured by a band of Nicaraguans after their plane had crashed into a mountain near Ocotol early in October. The navy department reported that they were killed by their captors.

Recently the marine corps announced that the "bandit extermination" program would be prosecuted with increased vigor at the end of the rainy season late this month. The aviators now in Nicaragua have been reinforced and have been supplied with new equipment for the avowed purpose of conducting an intensive bombing campaign as soon as dry weather arrives.

Under the marine rule of the Central American country, according to reports received in Washington, all persons traveling through northern Nicaragua must register with the marine command in Managua so that the airmen will have information about their routes and itineraries

Republican France Has More Queens Than Have One Hundred Monarchies

By JOHN O'BRIEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(UP)—France is a democratic republic, but it has more queens than a hundred monarchies.

Every trade and profession has one, elected annually. Mme. Huguette Duflos is one of the Queens of the Theatre. Mile. Margot Couette is the Queen of the "Midinettes" those sprightly, saucy girls who carry enormous hatboxes from the millinery stores to customers and who fill the boulevards at the hour of noon, whence their name. Let's see how their daily lives compare.

In a two by four in the Latin quarter or in an outlying suburb, Margot awakes at 6:55 because the alarm clock is ringing its head off. She turns over, murmuring: "Oh, shut up, I've got five more minutes." But at 8:03 she is at the neighboring wine and coffee shop, saying sweetly: "A cafe-creme, a croissant, and be quick about it." Then she adds: "Mon Dieu, but it's hot that coffee." She gulps it down and trots off with a genial: "Au revoir. See you tomorrow."

At 8:10 she is grabbing the rail at the back of the autobus, greeting the conductor with: "Hey there. Just a second, old pal. The customers are waiting for me." At precisely eighty-three she invades the workshop, looks at the clock and the frowning face of the superintendent and snaps: "No, no and no, that clock isn't right. I've got the railroad time."

At almost the same minute Mme. Huguette Duflos is sipping a cup of tea in the boudoir of her mansion in the rue Cambaceres in the Madeleine quarter, and making plans for a well filled day.

Mme. Huguette arrives at her and not drop bombs on them. This is considered here to prestage a ruthless drive against all "bandits" and insurgents in the northern provinces.

OLD 'ARITHMETICK' BEING EXHIBITED

Book, 172 Years Old, Owned By Circleville Man, Placed On Display Here.

On exhibition in the show window of Mader's Art Store, is an arithmetic 172 years old. It is the property of E. Gheen, a salesman in the hardware store of J. M. Morris, East Main street. The book is an old relic in the Gheen family, and was originally owned by William H. Miller, a maternal grandfather of Mr. Gheen. It was brought here from their old home in West Virginia.

The preface reads: "Arithmetick, both in theory and practice. Isaac Jackson M D C C L V I Philadelphia

"Arithmetick is an art or science that teaches us the dextrous handling of numbers, and contains three branches, namely,

dressmaker's at ten-thirty. She had a rendezvous with the fashion queen at ten but what does it matter between queens? Queen Margot Couette waits on her more favored sister, because "midinettes" don't spend all their time trotting the Boulevards. Thence to the jeweler's in the rue de la Paix where a necklace or a bracelet is added to the list of madame's holdings. Madame Huguette declared recently that she was quitting the famous Comedie Francaise because she earned only $2,000 a year and paid, or is paying, a fine of $6,000 for breaking her contract, but she added at the time that there were other places where she could make more.

The big limousine with luxurious fittings takes the Queen 30 miles out of Paris, to the Mill of Bicharel, where she lurches in the quiet of the country, preparing her nerves for the ordeal of the afternoon.

Queen Margot watches the clock as the noon hour approaches. At 12:10 she and her little camarade are in the "Sparrows Restaurant," otherwise the Tuilleries Gardens. "Isn't it great," she says to her girl friend, "to be able to have an hour in the country? Oh, here comes the chair woman for her nickel. Let's ship."

At one-thirty they are gazing into the show windows of the big department store. Meanwhile Mme. Huguette Duflos has tried on a new gown, half a dozen hats and a cloak and has stood under the glare of the studio lights for two hours. Her nerves are going to pieces. She fixes that by a rapid swing around the Bois de Boulogne and goes to dinner at the Cafe de Paris, getting through just in time to dash to her dressing room at the Theater de l'Athenee and get ready to go in the title role of "Nicole." After that nothing to do till tomorrow.

CAGELESS BANKS IS NEW YORK DECREE

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(UP)—With the opening on Jan. 1, of a new home for one of New York's biggest banks, the abolishment of steel cages and armored arrays of safes and vaults will become the latest national fashion in business.

The new bank will have the appearance of any modern business office and money transactions will be carried on at desks or over counters unprotected by forbidding screens.

"New York financiers have reached the conclusion that bank cages never prevented robberies," says the Woman's Home Companion, in announcing the revolutionary action in banking establishments, "but such fixtures have always made the depositor or borrower feel more like a suspicious character than a welcome customer. Banks have tried so hard to wear an aspect of safety that they have made themselves grim and cold. The abolishment of cages is one of a number of instances of the tendency to humanize the nation's business."

NOBLE'S WILL FOUND IN OLD PRAYER BOOK

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Looking through a pile of old books acquiring dust on his shelves, a book dealer of Pont-a-Mousson was about to hurl one of them, a family prayer-book, into the fire when he noticed an official looking document between the pages. Examining the document he found it to be the will of the proprietor of a nearby chateau executed the day the nobleman was led to the scaffold more than a century ago.

The will bequeathed the man's fortune to the church and gave indications where the money was hidden. Search in the basement of the chateau revealed gold and jewels estimated at $2,000,000.

JEWISH HOLIDAY BEGINS ON SUNDAY

The Feast of Lights, or the Feast of Dedication (known in Hebrew as "Chanukah"), will begin the evening of Sunday, Dec. 18. It is a holiday of deep and far-reaching significance to the modern Jew, who commemorates in this midwinter festival one of the most momentous periods and victories in his history.

The celebration of this Feast has no elaborate ritual in the synagogue or in the home. It has become a special Children's Feast.

A lot of people have a lot of ideas that are no good.

Big French Merchants All Arrived in Paris From Peasant Classes

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Real Alger novels could be written about the directors of the large department shops in Paris, according to Leon Treich, writing in "Candide." All of them rose from the ranks, many of them arriving in the French capital in wooden sabots, or else worn-out shoes.

Monsieur Boucicaut was a clerk in a tiny shop called "Au Petit Thomas" before taking over a small store which has now become "Le Bon Marche." Chauchard sold ties at the "Pauvre Diabolo" and Heriot silks at "La Villa de Paris" before they became associates in the big enterprise of the "Louvre."

The well-known M. Cognacq first rented a small corner for fifteen francs a day and worked from five in the morning until midnight, economizing every sou until he finally had 10,000 francs and began setting up what was later to become the big "Samaritaine."

Daniel Boone and Nick Carter Shot Season's First Deer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 15.—(INS)—Memories of childhood heroes, Indian fighters and desperate bandits, were brought back to mind, when the names of Daniel Boone and Nick Carter were again seen in print.

A hunter of the mighty name brought down the first buck of the opening of the season for deer in Massachusetts, when a 265 pound buck, one of the largest shot in this section, fell before his gun. Daniel Boone, that famous hunter and fighter of by-gone days lives again.

Nick Carter, too, reported a kill of a wily denizen of the Hampden forest.

Thus far, however, no kills have been reported by Davy Crocker, Kit Carson or by any hunter by the name of Robin Hood.

The woods of Western Massachusetts have never seen the number of hunters that are abroad this year.

AIR MAILMEN SOON TO COVER MANY MILES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—With the completion of 10 air mail routes now under construction, the United States will have a total of 25 in operation with a mileage of 11,856 according to the Commerce Department's Aeronautics bureau.

The territory covered by these routes has a population estimated at 62,299,409, served by 97 intermediate stations, comprising one of the greatest airways in the world.

The department said 15 are in operation now covering a total mileage of 7,997. Commercial routes bring this total to 12,000 miles.

With but one plane a day flying each way over this network, the department estimates the daily airplane mileage will more than equal the distance around the world at the Equator. On one line service will be doubled.

MRS. LEONA SHEA DIES IN CLEVELAND

Leona Shea, 25, wife of James Shea, son of Mrs. Mary E. Shea of East Main street, passed away at her home in Cleveland Wednesday after six months' illness of complications. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons; James and Thomas; her father, Frank Volker, and two sisters; Mrs. James McDonald and Miss Lucille Volker, of Cleveland. Funeral services will be held on Friday morning, with interment in Cleveland.

Infancy of Music

It is thought that the first musical instrument was made far back in the Stone age when some one made a simple bow and found that by twanging the string it would make a sound. Then, later some one conceived the idea of adding other shorter strings to make different sounds. This was the beginning of the harp. The drum was first made when sections of the hides of animals were stretched across hollow logs.

ENGLAND RETURNS INDIAN WAR CLUB

American Museum Acquires Ancient Weapon.

New York.—The war club of an important Indian of the old Iroquois tribe is a new prize acquired from England by the Museum of American Indian, Heye Foundation, here. From marks on the weapon museum experts have been able to reconstruct a good deal of its past career, even though any records or stories attached to it have long since been lost.

The handle of the club is carved with the words "Ogdehtague le camara de Jeanson" which, translated, means "Ogdehtague, the friend of Johnson," according to Arthur Woodward of the museum staff. On the other side of the handle is engraved the strange looking word "Warraghiyagey," which is the name the Iroquois gave to Sir William Johnson, the British superintendent of Indian affairs shortly before the American Revolution.

Bears Exploit Marks.

"The remainder of the cleared space on the handle is filled with a series of exploit marks," says Mr. Woodward. "There are war belts denoting the number of times the warrior had set out upon the war trail and the number of times he was wounded is shown. There is a rude carving of a full-length figure depicting on the body the tattoo marks worn by an old-time Iroquois fighting man. There are also figures representing 13 men each carrying a gun."

The ancient weapon recalls that in 1758, during the French and Indian war, an Onondaga warrior was slain by the enemy and Sir William Johnson's secretary recorded his death. This Indian bore the name of Otigenandagelte, which very nearly approximates the name on the war club, and the knife carried by this Indian bore the same words, "friend of Johnson," that are found on the club.

"It would seem that the knife and club both belonged to the same man," Mr. Woodward says, "and that the club, being a well-executed piece of work and more important than the knife, was taken as spoils of war by the Indian or Frenchman who killed its owner. Later the club may have been captured by some British fighter, and so it found its way to England as a curiosity. It would seem that the club belonged to some important man of the Iroquois who stood in well with Sir William, then the autocrat of Indian affairs."

Sent Back as Curios.

Many of the early colonists sent back to their homes in England, Holland, France, or Spain numbers of Indian "curios," he states. Today these souvenirs are among the most valuable of all American ethnological specimens, because they represent the culture of the American Indian at the time when he first came into contact with the old world civilization.

Every trade and profession has one elected annually. Mme. Huguette Duflos is one of the Queens of the Theatre. Mme. Margot Couette is the Queen of the "Midnettes" those sprightly, saucy girls who carry enormous hatboxes from the millinery stores to customers and who fill the boulevards at the hour of noon, whence their name. Let's see how their daily lives compare.

In a two by four in the Latin quarter or in an outlying suburb, Margot awakes at 6:55 because the alarm clock is ringing its head off. She turns over, murmuring: "Oh, shut up, I've got five more minutes." But at 8:03 she is at the neighboring wine and coffee shop, saying sweetly: "A cafe-creme, a croissant, and be quick about it." Then she adds: "Mon Dieu, but it's hot that coffee." She gulps it down and trots off with a genial: "Au revoir. See you tomorrow."

At 8:10 she is grabbing the rail at the back of the autobus, greeting the conductor with: "Hey there. Just a second, old pal. The customers are waiting for me." At precisely eight-thirty-one she invades the workshop, looks at the clock and the frowning face of the superintendent and snaps: "No, no and no, that clock isn't right. I've got the railroad time."

At almost the same minute Mme. Huguette Duflos is sipping a cup of tea in the boudoir of her mansion in the rue Cambaceres in the Madeline quarter, and making plans for a well filled day.

Mme. Huguette arrives at her dressmaker's at ten-thirty. She had a rendezvous with the fashion queen at ten but what does it matter between queens? Queen Margot Couette waits on her more favored sister, because "midnettes" don't spend all their time trotting the Boulevards. Thence to the jeweler's in the rue de la Paix where a necklace or a bracelet is added to the list of madame's holdings. Madame Huguette declared recently that she was quitting the famous Comedie Francaise because she earned only $2,000 a year and paid, or is paying, a fine of $6,000 for breaking her contract, but she added at the time that there were other places where she could make more.

The big limousine with luxurious fittings takes the Queen 30 miles out of Paris, to the Mill of Bichard, where she lunches in the quiet of the country, preparing her nerves for the ordeal of the afternoon.

Queen Margot watches the clock as the noon hour approaches. At 12:10 she and her little camarade are in the "Sparrows Restaurant," otherwise the Tuilleries Gardens. "Isn't it great," she says to her girl friend, "to be able to have an hour in the country? Oh, here comes the chair woman for her nickel. Let's ship."

At one-thirty they are gazing into the show windows of the big department store.

Meanwhile Mme. Huguette Duflos has tried on a new gown, half a dozen hats and a cloak and has stood under the glare of the studio lights for two hours. Her nerves are going to pieces. She fixes that by a rapid swing around the Bois de Boulogne and goes to dinner at the Cafe de Paris, getting through just in time to dash to her dressing room at the Theater de l'Athenes and get ready to go in the title role of "Nicole." After that nothing to do till tomorrow.

CAGELESS BANKS IS NEW YORK DECREE

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(UP)—With the opening on Jan. 1, of a new home for one of New York's biggest banks, the abolishment of steel cages and armored arrays of safes and vaults will become the latest national fashion in business.

The new bank will have the appearance of any modern business office and money transactions will be carried on at desks or over counters unprotected by forbidding screens.

"New York financiers have reached the conclusion that bank cages never prevented robberies," says the Woman's Home Companion, in announcing the revolutionary action in banking establishments, "but such fixtures have always made the depositor or borrower feel more like a suspicious character than a welcome customer. Banks have tried so hard to wear an aspect of safety that they have made themselves grim and cold. The abolishment of cages is one of a number of instances of the tendency to humanize the nation's business."

NOBLE'S WILL FOUND IN OLD PRAYER BOOK

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Looking through a pile of old books acquiring dust on his shelves, a book dealer of Pont-a-Mousson was about to hurl one of them, a family prayer-book, into the fire when he noticed an official looking document between the pages. Examining the document he found it to be the will of the proprietor of a nearby chateau executed the day the nobleman was led to the scaffold more than a century ago.

The will bequeathed the man's fortune to the church and gave indications where the money was hidden. Search in the basement of the chateau revealed gold and jewels estimated at $2,000,000.

JEWISH HOLIDAY BEGINS ON SUNDAY

The Feast of Lights, or the Feast of Dedication (known in Hebrew as "Chanukah"), will begin the evening of Sunday, Dec. 18. It is a holiday of deep and far-reaching significance to the modern Jew, who commemorates in this midwinter festival one of the most momentous periods and victories in his history.

The celebration of this Feast has no elaborate ritual in the synagogue or in the home. It has become a special Children's Feast.

A lot of people have a lot of ideas that are no good.

Big French Merchants All Arrived in Paris From Peasant Classes

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Real Alger novels could be written about the directors of the large department shops in Paris, according to Leon Treich, writing in "Candide." All of them rose from the ranks, many of them arriving in the French capital in wooden sabots, or else worn-out shoes.

Monsieur Boucaut was a clerk in a tiny shop called "Au Petit Thomas" before taking over a small store which has now become "Le Bon Marche." Chauchard sold ties at the "Pauvre Diabolo" and Heriot silks at "La Villa de Paris" before they became associates in the big enterprise of the "Louvre."

The well-known M. Cognacq first rented a small corner for fifteen francs a day and worked from five in the morning until midnight, economizing every sou until he finally had 10,000 francs and began setting up what was later to become the big "Samaritaine."

Daniel Boone and Nick Carter Shot Season's First Deer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 15.—(INS)—Memories of childhood heroes, Indian fighters and desperate bandits, were brought back to mind, when the names of Daniel Boone and Nick Carter were again seen in print.

A hunter of the mighty name brought down the first buck of the opening of the season for deer in Massachusetts, when a 265 pound buck, one of the largest shot in this section, fell before his gun. Daniel Boone, that famous hunter and fighter of by-gone days lives again.

Nick Carter, too, reported a kill of a wily denizen of the Hampden forest.

Thus far, however, no kills have been reported by Davy Crocker, Kit Carson or by any hunter by the name of Robin Hood.

The woods of Western Massachusetts have never seen the number of hunters that are abroad this year.

AIR MAILMEN SOON TO COVER MANY MILES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—With the completion of 10 air mail routes now under construction, the United States will have a total of 25 in operation with a mileage of 11,856 according to the Commerce Department's Aeronautics bureau.

The territory covered by these routes has a population estimated at 62,299,409, served by 97 intermediate stations, comprising one of the greatest airways in the world.

The department said 15 are in operation now covering a total mileage of 7,997. Commercial routes bring this total to 12,000 miles.

With but one plane a day flying each way over this network, the department estimates the daily air mail mileage will more than equal the distance around the world at the Equator. On one line service will be doubled.

MRS. LEONA SHEA DIES IN CLEVELAND

Leona Shea, 25, wife of James Shea, son of Mrs. Mary E. Shea of East Main street, passed away at her home in Cleveland Wednesday after six months' illness of complications. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, James and Thomas; her father, Frank Volker, and two sisters; Mrs. James McDonald and Miss Lucille Volker, of Cleveland. Funeral services will be held on Friday morning, with interment in Cleveland.

Infancy of Music

It is thought that the first musical instrument was made far back in the Stone age when some one made a simple bow and found that by twanging the string it would make a sound. Then, later some one conceived the idea of adding other shorter strings to make different sounds. This was the beginning of the harp. The drum was first made when sections of the hides of animals were stretched across hollow logs.

ENGLAND RETURNS INDIAN WAR CLUB

American Museum Acquires Ancient Weapon.

New York.—The war club of an important Indian of the old Iroquois tribe is a new prize acquired from England by the Museum of American Indian, Heye Foundation, here. From marks on the weapon museum experts have been able to reconstruct a good deal of its past career, even though any records or stories attached to it have long since been lost.

The handle of the club is carved with the words "Ogdehtague le camara de Jeanson" which, translated, means "Ogdehtague, the friend of Johnson," according to Arthur Woodward of the museum staff. On the other side of the handle is engraved the strange looking word "Warraghiyagey," which is the name the Iroquois gave to Sir William Johnson, the British superintendent of Indian affairs shortly before the American Revolution.

Bears Exploit Marks.

"The remainder of the cleared space on the handle is filled with a series of exploit marks," says Mr. Woodward. "There are war belts denoting the number of times the warrior had set out upon the war trail and the number of times he was wounded is shown. There is a rude carving of a full-length figure depicting on the body the tattoo marks worn by an old-time Iroquois fighting man. There are also figures representing 13 men each carrying a gun."

The ancient weapon recalls that in 1778, during the French and Indian war, an Onondaga warrior was slain by the enemy and Sir William Johnson's secretary recorded his death. This Indian bore the name of Ogdenandaghe, which very nearly approximates the name on the war club, and the knife carried by this Indian bore the same words, "Friend of Johnson," that are found on the club.

"It would seem that the knife and club both belonged to the same man," Mr. Woodward says, "and that the club, being a well-executed piece of work and more important than the knife, was taken as spoils of war by the Indian or Frenchman who killed its owner. Later the club may have been captured by some British fighter, and so it found its way to England as a curiosity. It would seem that the club belonged to some important man of the Iroquois who stood in well with Sir William, then the autocrat of Indian affairs."

Sent Back as Curios.

Many of the early colonists sent back to their homes in England, Holland, France, or Spain numbers of Indian "curios," he states. Today these souvenirs are among the most valuable of all American ethnological specimens, because they represent the culture of the American Indian at the time when he first came into contact with the old world civilization.

On exhibition in the show window of Mader's Art Store, is an arithmetic 172 years old. It is the property of E. Gheen, a salesman in the hardware store of J. M. Morris, East Main street. The book is an old relic in the Gheen family, and was originally owned by William H. Miller, a maternal grandfather of Mr. Gheen. It was brought here from their old home in West Virginia.

The preface reads: "Arithmetick, both in theory and practice. Isaac Jackson M D C C L V I Philadelphia

WINTER WEATHER HINTS ON AUTOS

Car Owners Are Warned to Carefully Prepare for Coming Freezes.

Warning was issued to all motor-ists of this section recently in regard to the preparation for winter weather, by William A. Ochs, head of emergency road service at the Detroit Automobile club. The following precautions are essential for the winter care of a car and for the prevention of emergency breakdowns and trouble, according to Mr. Ochs, whose department last year handled more than 25,000 such calls:

Water connections on the radiator and water pump should be checked for leaks and rotted rubber before anti-freeze solution is used.

Clean the Radiator.

The radiator should be cleaned thoroughly with running water or soda solution before the radiator is filled with the anti-freeze solution, since this solution will loosen up clings of rust and other dirt accumulations and circulate them through the motor.

Oil should be changed to the winter weight, according to the particular car and to prevent the freezing of occasional water accumulations at the bottom of the crank case.

Batteries which require rebuilding and charging should be cared for before the cold nights of radio weather make spare batteries impossible to obtain in an emergency.

The rear end and transmission should be oiled with the winter weight of lubricant before freezing weather brings about a stiffening of the oil and damages the gears.

Anti-freeze solutions which have been retained from last winter should be tested with a hydrometer to ascertain their present strength. Summer weather often evaporates them to a useless preventative against freezing weather.

Inspect Tires.

Tires should be inspected for cuts before the frost and ice are allowed to destroy the cords.

Carburetors should be adjusted to a winter mixture where necessary to prevent delayed starting, which runs down the battery. Ignition and coil windings should be examined, since cold weather will bring out any flaw and cause a short as the result of mechanical contraction when the mercury falls.

More than 2,000 emergency road service calls were made by Mr. Ochs' department last year to attend faulty ignition during the early winter months.

Motor Truck Sales in 1927 to Reach 500,000

Five hundred thousand motor trucks for commercial transport will be purchased in the United States in 1927, according to a bulletin of the American Research foundation.

"Because of its greater radius of operation and its ability to handle larger loads, the motor truck is displacing horse-drawn vehicles faster now than ever before," says the bulletin. "The ton-mile costs are so much less that the horse is falling in its ability to compete."

"Bankers and financial houses are favorable to the purchase of trucks on the installment plan, as the trucks immediately begin to return revenue."

"The nation's production of gasoline was 42,021,000 barrels of gasoline in 1916, as compared with 29,734,000 barrels in 1926, which, however, is just about in line with the increase in demand due to the expansion of the demand for motors."

Clean Out Old Grease

Front wheel bearings get their lubricant from the hub caps. While the supply of grease in these units may be considered adequate, its condition is a point that needs attention. If the lubricant is silvery in color the fact is an indication that it is filled with dust and filings. In such a case should be changed without delay, for these substances play havoc with the lubricating qualities of the grease.

Motorists Finding Use! Car Situation Is Tough

Many motorists who are not satisfied with what their dealers offer them for their old car in trade are attempting to dispose of the cars themselves. The process is serving to teach thousands just what the dealer is up against when he tries to sell a used car. They also quickly realize that their appraisal of the car usually is higher by many dollars than that anyone else sets upon the machine.

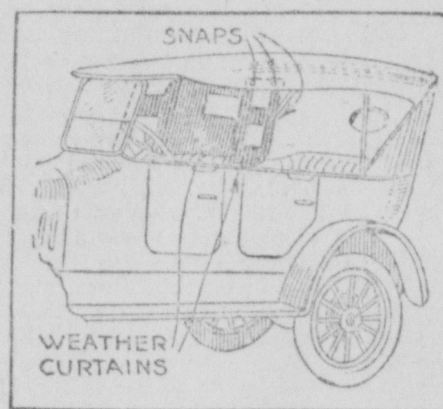

The dealer, often at his wits' end trying to cope with the used car problem, would like to see more new car prospects dispose of their old cars, or at least, make the attempt. If they succeed, he would not have to tie up capital in the used car and pay heavy overhead charges until he disposed of it. If they failed, they probably would become more rational in their idea of what the car was worth in trade.

Either way he benefits and, with the problem constantly pressing upon him, he cannot be blamed for wanting to benefit in some way.

Automobile Makes Work

It is estimated that 700,000 persons in the United States are employed directly in producing motor vehicles, motor-vehicle bodies, parts and accessories. Something like 200,000 are kept busy providing tires and gasoline, and 1,000,000 dealers find employment distributing the cars and keeping them in running order. Professional chauffeurs and truck drivers gain motorized livelihoods, bringing the total to well above 3,000,000.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

A used pedestrian can look quite as much so as a used-up car.

Loose gravel or wet clay will cause a car to skid at times at the least touch of the brakes.

Another comparatively busy man is the country blacksmith who can both shoe horses and fix cars.

Paris police must be acquainted with all kinds of automobile controls and know how to drive the cars, so that they may be able to bring in abandoned cars.

A spectroscopic is being used at Mt. Holyoke college to "photograph" engine knocks. The slightest impurities are detected when artificial rainbows are created in the cylinders.

Parasitic Bugs Prey on Moths

One of Most Promising In- troduced Lives on Larvae of Gypsy Moth.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In attempting to fight depredations of the gypsy and brown-tail moths the entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture have been seeking parasite insects to prey on the moths and reduce their numbers. One of the promising introduced parasites, which goes under the name of Apanteles melanoscelus, lives on the larvae of the gypsy moth. It was discovered that this parasite produces two generations each year, and with the high rate of multiplication common in insects it was hoped that it might develop as a great check on the moth pest.

Parasites on Parasites.

A recent report from the bureau of entomology discloses, however, that the parasite is itself a prey of parasites whose work combined with other unfavorable factors, is so deadly that some years not more than about 1 per cent of the second generation of Apanteles are likely to produce adults the following spring. The parasites on parasites are called hyperparasites, and the studies made of Apanteles melanoscelus have revealed that it has about 35 species or kinds of hyperparasites preying upon it, 14 of which are responsible for about 60 per cent of the total parasitism. That these hyperparasites, plus birds and unfavorable weather, do not utterly annihilate the beneficial Apanteles may be due to the fact that most of these hyperparasites are in turn preyed upon by the parasites of hyperparasites which the entomologists describe as tertiary parasites.

Discriminating Feeder.

Apanteles is a somewhat discriminating feeder and preys on only the gypsy moth and a few other kinds, but the hyperparasites are not so particular and attack many parasitic insects. A short crop of Apanteles melanoscelus, therefore, does not mean that the number of its enemies will be reduced correspondingly the following year. However, when Apanteles melanoscelus is scarce there is usually a great reduction in the numbers of hyperparasites. A reassuring aspect of the situation is that the Apanteles in its native home is attacked as seriously by hyperparasites as has been the case in America, but it continues to survive and at times is one of the predominant enemies of the gypsy moth. There is an intimate relation between hosts and parasites, hyper and tertiary parasites, "and so ad infinitum," with many factors preventing excessive and uninterrupted increase.

Increasing Demand Made for Soy Beans

Call for Expansion of Pro- duction in This Country.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Soy-bean growing is a branch of agriculture in which the national supply does not meet the demand. W. J. Morse of the United States Department of Agriculture pointed out to an Illinois audience at the State Soy Bean day celebration at Urbana. In spite of the very rapid spread of soy-bean culture in the United States in recent years, we imported last year about 31,000,000 pounds of soy-bean oil, 43,000,000 pounds of soy-bean cake, and 4,000,000 pounds of soy beans. These large imports and the increasing utilization of the crop, Mr. Morse said, call for an expansion of soy-bean production in our own country.

In the United States the industry is in its infancy and although soy beans are used primarily for forage, our oil mills offer an opportunity for a greater production of seed. In China the soy bean is primarily a cash crop. It is used in many food products and is an indispensable part of the national diet. In Manchuria, which produces about 70 per cent of the world supply of soy beans, the crop occupies about 25 per cent of the cultivated area, producing on the average about half a ton to the acre.

That the Department of Agriculture is doing its share in promoting soy-bean culture is reflected in the fact that one of its agricultural explorers in China obtained approximately 2,000 introductions of seed, which are being tried out by the government with promising results.

Experiments Point Out Time to Vaccinate Pigs

Many experiments point out that the right time to vaccinate a pig for cholera is when the animal is in good health. It is also a good plan to vaccinate early in the spring before the pigs have been weaned and exposed to the diseases in the hog lot.

One can permanently immunize pigs against cholera by vaccinating when they are between twenty-four hours and two weeks old. It is also cheaper to vaccinate a two-week-old pig than one that is older, the cost being only 14 cents. It is also easier to handle younger pigs and in case of death one does not lose much because the investment in feed and care is not very much.

The process is serving to teach thousands just what the dealer is up against when he tries to sell a used car. They also quickly realize that their appraisal of the car usually is higher by many dollars than that anyone else sets upon the machine.

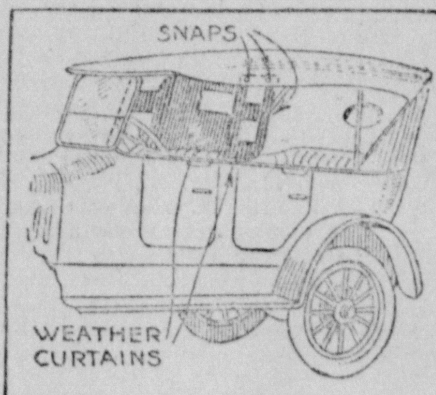

The dealer, often at his wits' end trying to come with the used car problem, would like to see more new car prospects dispose of their old cars, or at least, make the attempt. If they succeed, he would not have to tie up capital in the used car and pay heavy overhead charges until he disposed of it. If they failed, they probably would become more rational in their idea of what the car was worth in trade.

Either way he benefits and, with the problem constantly pressing upon him, he cannot be blamed for wanting to benefit in some way.

EXTRA CURTAIN HELPS COMFORT

Prevents Drafts on Back of Neck of the Car Driver.

By fitting a curtain around the back of the front seat of the open touring car—with the method illustrated—you can make the driver as comfortable as he would be in a runabout without at the same time closing in the whole car with the complete set of curtains. It will help to prevent drafts on the back of your neck and will to some extent reduce the force of the wind.

A Special Curtain Around the Back of the Front Seat in the Touring Car Will Add Greatly to the Comfort of Driver and Riders.

blowing on the passengers in the back seat, a service for which they will be grateful. In most cases, you will find that the special curtain can be fastened at the sides to the regular curtain fasteners provided on the car. Additional fasteners can be attached to the back of the seat and the top to hold the curtain at these points.—Popular Science Monthly.

Automobile Makes Work

It is estimated that 700,000 persons in the United States are employed directly in producing motor vehicles, motor-vehicle bodies, parts and accessories. Something like 200,000 are kept busy providing tires and gasoline, and 1,000,000 dealers find employment distributing the cars and keeping them in running order. Professional chauffeurs and truck drivers gain motorized livelihoods, bringing the total to well above 3,000,000.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

A used pedestrian can look quite as much so as a used-up car.

Loose gravel or wet clay will cause a car to skid at times at the least touch of the brakes.

Another comparatively busy man is the country blacksmith who can both shoe horses and fix cars.

Paris police must be acquainted with all kinds of automobile controls and know how to drive the cars, so that they may be able to bring in abandoned cars.

Parasitic Bugs Prey on Moths

One of Most Promising Introduced Lives on Larvae of Gypsy Moth.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In attempting to fight depredations of the gypsy and brown-tail moths the entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture have been seeking parasite insects to prey on the moths and reduce their numbers. One of the promising introduced parasites, which goes under the name of Apanteles melanoscelus, lives on the larvae of the gypsy moth. It was discovered that this parasite produces two generations each year, and with the high rate of multiplication common in insects it was hoped that it might develop as a great check on the moth pest.

Parasites on Parasite.

A recent report from the bureau of entomology discloses, however, that the parasite is itself a prey of parasites whose work combined with other unfavorable factors, is so deadly that some years not more than about 1 per cent of the second generation of Apanteles are likely to produce adults the following spring. The parasites on parasites are called hyperparasites, and the studies made of Apanteles melanoscelus have revealed that it has about 35 species or kinds of hyperparasites preying upon it, 14 of which are responsible for about 90 per cent of the total parasitism. That these hyperparasites, plus birds and unfavorable weather, do not utterly annihilate the beneficial Apanteles may be due to the fact that most of these hyperparasites are in turn preyed upon by the parasites of hyperparasites which the entomologists describe as tertiary parasites.

Discriminating Feeder.

Apanteles is a somewhat discriminating feeder and preys on only the gypsy moth and a few other kinds, but the hyperparasites are not so particular and attack many parasitic insects. A short crop of Apanteles melanoscelus, therefore, does not mean that the number of its enemies will be reduced correspondingly the following year. However, when Apanteles melanoscelus is scarce there is usually a great reduction in the numbers of hyperparasites. A reassuring aspect of the situation is that the Apanteles in its native home is attacked as seriously by hyperparasites as has been the case in America, but it continues to survive and at times is one of the predominating enemies of the gypsy moth. There is an intimate relation between hosts and parasites, hyper and tertiary parasites, "and so ad infinitum," with many factors preventing excessive and uninterrupted increase.

Increasing Demand Made for Soy Beans

Call for Expansion of Production in This Country.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Soy-bean growing is a branch of agriculture in which the national supply does not meet the demand. W. J. Morse of the United States Department of Agriculture pointed out to an Illinois audience at the State Soy Bean day celebration at Urbana. In spite of the very rapid spread of soy-bean culture in the United States in recent years, we imported last year about 31,000,000 pounds of soy-bean oil, 43,000,000 pounds of soy-bean cake, and 4,000,000 pounds of soy beans. These large imports and the increasing utilization of the crop, Mr. Morse said, call for an expansion of soy-bean production in our own country.

In the United States the industry is in its infancy and although soy beans are used primarily for forage, our oil mills offer an opportunity for a greater production of seed. In China the soy bean is primarily a cash crop. It is used in many food products and is an indispensable part of the national diet. In Manchuria, which produces about 70 per cent of the world supply of soy beans, the crop occupies about 25 per cent of the cultivated area, producing on the average about half a ton to the acre.

That the Department of Agriculture is doing its share in promoting soy-bean culture is reflected in the fact that one of its agricultural explorers in China obtained approximately 2,000 introductions of seed, which are being tried out by the government with promising results.

Experiments Point Out Time to Vaccinate Pigs

Many experiments point out that the right time to vaccinate a pig for cholera is when the animal is in good health. It is also a good plan to vaccinate early in the spring before the pigs have been weaned and exposed to the diseases in the hog lot.

One can permanently immunize pigs against cholera by vaccinating when they are between twenty-four hours and two weeks old. It is also cheaper to vaccinate a two-weeks-old pig than one that is older, the cost being only 14 cents. It is also easier to handle younger pigs and in case of death one does not lose much because the investment in feed and care is not very much.

THE STORY OF SANTA CLAUS

KNOW the true story of Santa Claus?

Few people do. But John Macy in "The Bookman" tells us about this grand and glorious old saint.

Mr. Macy says the name "Santa Claus" is a mere slur of the Dutch San Nicholas, and he says that American children are perhaps the only ones in the world who call him by that name.

"Nicholas," writes Mr. Macy, "was an actual person. He was bishop in Myra, in Lycia, Asia Minor, in the first part of the fourth century of the Christian era. He was the youngest bishop in the history of the church. From the day of his birth, Nicholas revealed his piety and grace. Nicholas was not a bare-foot recluse vowed to poverty. His father was a wealthy merchant, and his riches, inherited by the magic wand which fairy-godfathers wield, enabled him to be a dispenser of the good things of life as earthly representative of the Supreme Giver of gifts.

"The most famous episode in his long career of benevolence, is his rescue of the three dowryless maidens by secretly giving them purses of gold. Thus Nicholas became not only the generous giver but the special patron saint of maidenhood and was so known and celebrated throughout the Middle Ages. The bankers and brokers wished to give sanctity and dignity to their business and also adopted the generous Nicholas as their heavenly protector. He was adopted besides, by thieves and pirates. In addition Nicholas was the patron of all who went down to the sea in ships, whether bound on a predatory cruise or a military expedition or an errand of peaceful trade. He was, in fact, the most popular saint in the calendar."

The feast of Saint Nicholas was originally celebrated on the sixth of December, Mr. Macy says. But when the Catholic church and the Protestants in the late Middle Ages, tried to suppress for one reason or another the festivities which grew up around the Boy Saint's day, the children refused to give him up and gradually his festival was assimilated with Christmas Day.

"In Belgium and Holland," Mr. Macy continues, "the festival of the saint is still observed on his birthday, December 6th, and the jollities and excitements are much the same as those that we enjoy at Christmas, with the same charming local variations. Saint Nicholas is not the merry fellow with a chubby face and twinkling eye, but retains the gravity appropriate to a venerable bishop. He rides a horse or an ass instead of driving a team of reindeer.

"Where did Santa Claus get his reindeer?" asks Mr. Macy. "And how did the grave saint become that gnome-like fat fellow, with nothing ecclesiastic about him? Santa Claus, the merry elf, is not Christian at all, but pagan, coming down from times earlier than the Christian era, or at least earlier than the times when the Teutonic people were Christianized. He belongs to popular fairyland, the land of elves, gnomes, sprites, hobgoblins. In countless fairy tales there are good spirits and evil spirits. The evil spirits haunt the woods and molest innocent people. The good spirits and the poor, bring gifts in the night, rescue princes in distress and so on. Associated with these stories are popular festivals and ceremonies. As Christianity developed, the church encouraged all the popular customs or many of them, took them over and associated them with Christian holidays.

"The reindeer of our Santa Claus came from Lapland and Santa is an arctic explorer, exploring the other way. Among the Germans or Dutch who came to this country there must have been a legend of a Scandinavian Santa."

WHEN HE'S BEEN IN THE FAMILY FOR YEARS

FATIGUE AN ENEMY TO HUMAN HAPPINESS

Amiable and Unbiased Discussion Impossible When One Is Tired Out, Since the Condition Is Bound to Cause Irritability.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FATIGUE is the cause of more battles than have accompanied the wars of history. Fortunately most of those battles have been bloodless. The ammunition has been disagreeable words and not bullets. But such battles have been fatal to happiness and domestic harmony. They have driven children from some and many a person to crime.

Good nature, readiness to discuss quietly a debatable question, and general amiability are involved in this question. You cannot have these qualities in a person who is worn out from worry or hard work. Fatigue is fatal to them.

The most trying time in any man's life is between the hours of four and seven in the afternoon. He is worn out from his day's work. He is cross and irritable. He is bound to be crusty and snappy. Even though he is gentleman enough to hide his real feelings, he is in a dangerous mood.

Any woman who has worked till her back aches and her head is bursting, is close to an explosion of temper and harsh words. An outburst now might destroy a home.

Many a child is fretful and tearful, cross and disagreeable—symptoms due wholly to over-fatigue. The atmosphere of peace and quiet is destroyed by the poor child becoming over-tired. To give way to temper and to do so habitually is to invite disease. The nervous system is undermined, digestion is disturbed, and the health is impaired.

The already overtaxed child is shipped for his bad manners. The disposition is ruined by repeated unishments.

The demands of the modern school exhaust the energies of the pupil. The parent must give due regard to the fact in dealing with a worn out child.

Over fatigue leads to restless sleep, and dreams, and unrefreshing slumbers. It lessens the appetite. It causes the temptation of taking stimulants and other drugs.

Business men, housewives, and all those who can control their own movements should so order their affairs that periods of relaxation give opportunity for rest and refreshment. Employers of labor, teachers, fire directors and all who control the activities of others, should be careful in the arrangement of work schedules. Rest and recreation periods should be provided.

These suggestions make for better citizenship. There will be a resultant output of satisfactory work if those who labor are not broken down by fatigue. The accidents on the streets and in the shops are more frequent at the end of the day, when fatigue lessens the mental alertness and the physical reactions.

You should guard against excessive tiredness. It is indecent to be weary, but, if you can help it, it is wicked to be tired all the time.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Sergeant Eadie and Private Darcy, lately discharged from a hospital, behind the front, in France, become bored and disgusted with life in replacement camp. They elude the guards and go over the hill to find and rejoin their old outfit, the Seventh field artillery. At Valenciennes they are told their outfit has moved up beyond Toul. Weak, tired and hungry, the two men seek food. Upon the promise of a "real" food, they split a pile of wood for an officer's cook. When the latter offers them bread and salmon, they thrash him. A friendly M. P. helps them get a truck ride to Toul and some bread and jam for a meal.

CHAPTER II—Late next day they find their organization in the woods, and are enthusiastically welcomed by their "buddies," although Eadie has to submit to some good-natured "kid-ding" concerning his stay in hospital. Both men are worn out and hungry, but a drive on the German position, to begin in an hour, and Eadie is commanded to go along. The Americans prepare to launch an early morning attack against the Germans at Saint Mihiel. The Americans are pleasantly surprised at the little resistance met in their advance; the Germans evidently pulled out in the night. Eadie is sent back to report the successful advance to his captain.

Behind the table stood the two cooks. One served the meat—fried steaks of most appetizing odor—and ladled a spoonful of a kind of sauce, made of the grease from the fried meat stirred up with flour and canned tomatoes, into each messkit. The other served out one canned apricot and a little dab of olive, putting them on the lid of the messkit. The messkit was composed of two parts, a deep oval dish, with a folding handle, into which was put all the main components of the meal, and a flat lid, on which was placed whatever served as dessert, canned apples, rice and prunes, stale bread sprinkled with cinnamon and called pudding, or the old reliable and ever ready, sirup. The messkit was held in one hand, the lid being supported on the handle, and since the desert, of whatever form, always had some liquid component, it required a great deal of address to keep said liquid from running off the lid and all over the soldier's hand.

The messkit once full, the soldier extended his left hand, in which he held a tin cup. This cup also had a folding handle, a handle that was secured by the weakest and most treacherous of fastenings, so that the slightest jar would unfix it, and the cup, swinging like the bucket of a dumping machine, would empty its load of coffee on the ground or down some eating soldier's neck. The K. P. standing by the coffee can filled the cup, and the mess sergeant, last in line, placed a slice of bread, either on the cup or on the messkit, as the soldier indicated. The soldier then sought a place to sit carefully and gingerly down, rest his messkit beside him and eat.

"I'll say this," remarked Eadie, kneeling carefully down and lowering first cup and then messkit to the ground. "This is as fine a meal as I've had for some time." He looked around for Ham and Short and was already making their way cautiously toward him, and Jake and Baldy were about two-thirds served.

"The chow hounds have got too much in their messkits to run around to the rear of the line still eatin'" remarked Ham. "Yuh can't eat with both hands full. Yesterday them wops took to their heels and got into line again the minute they was served. And then they stood in line and gulped down fast to get their messkit empty by the time they got to the tables again."

"They ought to put a stop to that," said Eadie. A long blast of a whistle interrupted him.

"Tenshun!" bellowed the first sergeant, who had taken his stand near the mess line, where all could hear him. The clatter of the messkits and the scrape of spoon on pan were instantly stilled.

"This afternoon," said the first sergeant when all was quiet, "the battery will take a bath. All duty will be suspended but that of bakin'. Gun crews and the different details will be brought up by their section chiefs and checked off on the roll. No one excused. No one! All pockets to be brought to the mess sergeant directly after dinner. The liaison detail will report to me right after dinner to cut wood, dig a hole, and rig up tarpaulins for a bathroom. They will also keep the fire going in the water hot. Is there anyone that did not hear me?"

"How come the liaison detail?" muttered Eadie against.

"Ah!" said the first sergeant, looking haughtily at Eadie down his nose. "Little game of crap behind the hay bales this morning, eh? Thought I didn't see, eh? The brain squad will do a little work with their hands this afternoon and it will not be rolling bones, either."

The grinning faces of a hundred odd men were turned toward Eadie. He proceeded to eat with burning ears and made no comment. As for Baldy and Jake, they grinned sheepishly.

"That's all!" barked the first sergeant, and the clatter of feeding began again.

The liaison detail reported after dinner. They dug a hole for a fire, put handspikes over it to form a grate, cut wood for fuel, and rigged two tarpaulins to form a shelter against the biting wind. Then, having filled several buckets and a G. I. can with water, they set them on the grate and started the fire. It was hard and arduous work, especially the rigging of the tarpaulin, for the canvas was wet and stiff and the wind blew it down as fast as they got it up. Then Eadie and Short Mack were both sergeants and supposedly exempt from manual labor made no difference. They worked with the rest. If they kicked at working as sergeants they would probably be working as privates the next day.

The bathers began to arrive and under the supervision of the first sergeant, they entered the bathroom, undressed, scrubbed themselves well, dressed, and came out again. The sections followed each other in order and the liaison detail, who really formed the fifth section, backed in their turn.

Eadie was putting on his clothes and Red Jake had just appeared with two buckets full of water and the news that the water cart had gone for another load, and that he had plundered the supply the cook had saved for the supper's coffee.

"Sergeant Eadie," called the first sergeant, "report to the battery commander."

Jake and Short looked soberly at Eadie, while the latter sergeant's heart did a sickening flop. He brushed his hands and went forward.

The battery commander led Eadie a little bit away and, having cleared his throat, began.

"Sergeant, we're going to another party. The battalion commander has asked for a sergeant who can adjust fire and repair telephone lines to accompany the liaison officer. Well, now, there's only one N. C. O. in the battalion that can do that, and that's yourself, so you'll have to go along. Take one other man and report to the battalion right away. Who will you take with you?"

"I'll think I'll take the new man," said Eadie, "the big red-headed guy." "That gorilla?" cried the captain. "Well, suit yourself. I understand that Mack and some other man will relieve you after twenty-four hours. You're going with the infantry of some other division, the way you did at Saint Mihiel."

"Is this going to be the same kind of a picnic, sir?"

"No," said the captain, slowly. "This is going to be a real, old issue, Mark I scrap. There's a lieutenant going with you. He'll do the work. You're going along as a sort of dog-robber, and to take his place if he's a casualty. Well, good luck if I don't see you again."

Eadie went hurriedly back and put on his blouse.

"Put down those buckets, Jake," said Eadie. "Put on your blouse and come with me."

"Where are you going?" cried Short Mack.

"He's going up to the front to shoot crap in a shell hole for a couple of days and get shell shocked again," remarked the top. "Eadie, if I had your luck I'd be satisfied to be born a Chick."

"What's all this?" cried Short. "Another party, Short?" replied Eadie. "I'll see you and Baldy tomorrow night, up on the lines. Come on, Jake."

"Caisson section, come on in!" bellowed the first sergeant, and Jake and Eadie took their departure.

Under the tree that sheltered the liaison detail's tarpaulin, Eadie made his preparations. In his musette, a small bag he carried slung from one shoulder, he put his toilet articles, a towel, two short lengths of candle, a box of pistol ammunition, two well-sharpened pencils, a small can of beans and a tin box of hardtack. In his pockets he had a knife, a notebook, a flashlight, a briquet, matches and cigarettes. He belted on his pistol and canteen, rolled overcoat and slicker and slung them across his breast, and hung his gas mask over all.

"After a week of theft and barter," said Eadie to Jake, "I managed to gather quite an outfit. The only thing I lack is a pair of field glasses, but if the night is dark enough I'll have 'em before daylight. Look, Jake, don't take anything that you can do without, because you've got to carry it on your back, you know. I wish I had a pack carrier, but I haven't, so I can't take any blankets. Never mind, I've got a good thick overcoat I picked out after a whole afternoon's hunt at Le Cornet. I d—n near got caught with it, too. The birds that lived in the barracks where I got it came back a half hour early from drill."

"What are we going to do?" asked Jake.

"Nothing," said Eadie, "but go along with a bunch of doughboys and get a chance at some souvenirs. Come on. I can see the gang clustering around the battalion now."

CHAPTER IV

Seven Men to the Yard

Black, black night, mist, and cold. From the darkness came a steady, prolonged sound of marching feet, a rattle of carts, and a hoarse cry of, "Keep over, G—d d—n it!" from time to time. There were halts at intervals, when men came to an abrupt stop by running against the men in front of them. The men cursed, officers on horseback cursed, the cry of, "Get going up there! Get on ahead!" would run down the column for miles.

At last the stream would start forward again, a thousand rifles would settle as they were shifted to a new rubbing place on the shoulder, a hundred sticks would fall on as many machine gun mules, a thousand men would mutter, "—, how much farther we got to go?"

From this stream four men detached themselves and, going off the road a little way, came to a collection of shattered houses. One of the men opened a door and lifting a blanket, one side said: "This is the place. Watch the stairs." The four went in, felt their way down a stairway, lifted an orange blanket and entered a large room, lighted with candles and lanterns. Here two men of the four went away and the other two looked about for a place to sit, and finding none better than the floor, sat on that. The two that sat were Sergeant Eadie and Jake, and the two that had gone away were the artillery liaison officer and an infantry guide.

"What's this place?" asked Jake in a whisper.

"This is some kind of a P. C.," answered Eadie, "brigade or division. There are too many men in it for a regimental." The two looked about them. On all sides were tables, half a dozen telephone instruments, maps spread wide and held down by field glasses and pistols, officers every where, cigarette smoke in clouds, by the door a bench full of runners with red brassards, who were continually going out with messages.

"Lookit them boche!" said Jake suddenly. Eadie, with a quickening pulse, looked across the room. There were four wounded Germans there on stretchers, their muddy boots half hiding their faces from Eadie's gaze. They were all old, their hands were wasted and thin, and the uniforms faded, daubed with mud and torn.

"They probably got them in some last minute raid," said Eadie. "I told you this affair wouldn't amount to anything. How much nerve does it take to fight a bunch of grandfathers like that?"

"Well, some one's takin' a serious view of it," muttered Jake. "I never seen so many people on the road at once since the last world series I went to." He thought of the miles of crowded roads that he and the sergeant had traversed since leaving the battery, roads jammed with trucks, with tanks, with heavy guns, with light guns, ambulances, machine gun and ammunition carts, with every kind of a military vehicle that has wheels or a caterpillar tread. The two had left the battery with the officer, had met the infantry guide, had ridden a long time in a truck, then in an empty ambulance, and had finished the journey on foot, marching with a regiment of infantry.

"You might give a guy some idea of what all this stuff is about," complained Jake. "You said it was a soft job. If this is a soft job, breakin' rocks is a rest cure. I ain't walked so much since the time I got bounced off a freight in Minnesota."

IN SOCIETY

MISS ALLISON DELAPLAINE. SOCIETY EDITOR.

Elson Art Exhibit

The Elson Art Exhibit at the Circleville High School gives an excellent opportunity to everyone of seeing the works of the best known artists at close view. The exhibition is very complete and so arranged as to be easily studied. The pictures are placed so that the artists of each country are displayed side by side, and can easily be contrasted in matters of beauty, detail and general characteristics.

The ushers, at the building, who are teachers and pupils, identify each picture and give a brief history of them in which interest is shown, and Wednesday night there was quite a variety of opinions expressed by the people who were there.

The Dutch and French art, which has always been admired, was particularly popular. Hobbema's painting, "Avenue Middelhornis," is one of the best known, as well as Van Dyke's "Baby Stuart."

In the French display comes the famous painting of Rosa Bonheur, "The Horse Fair," with the beautiful Percheron horses. There are several paintings of the famous Corot, whose works are the result of a highly imaginative mind, "Dance of the Nymphs," being one of the most beautiful. There are also pictures of Breton, Cazin, and Millet, and many other well known French artists.

"The Parthenon," among the Greek architecture, and "The Aphrodite," among the sculptures, are other pictures of interest and a nature view of Matterhorn, the peak in the Alps, is especially worthy of a little study.

Two of the colorful Spanish types are the "Prince Don Balthazar Carlos" and "The Tapestry Weavers," the latter being the masterpiece of Velasquez.

The display of American paintings, illustrates the variety and quality of the comparatively new artists and all the subjects are purely typical of American talents. In this group are masterpieces of Whistler, the famous portrait painter, and many others including Remington and Sargent.

The ever popular "Dignity and Impudence," the picture of the two dogs, by Landseer, is only one of a large number of English paintings. German artists, too, are well represented, and possibly are the most familiar.

There are many specimens of Italian paintings, of the early Renaissance period, and Raphael, and Leonardo Da Vinci's Madonnas, in the group of the High Renaissance period. -1234566 78905.

Many other pictures of well known artists are found, as well as a great number of excellent paintings, with which few people are familiar, and which are well worth knowing. The exhibit is an education in fine art, to be acquired in a short and very enjoyable evening.

Use Holland potatoes. Peel and bake them whole in the oven. Cut lengthwise and remove a little of the pulp. Place them in a baking-pan and put a piece of butter into each hollow. Break a fresh egg over each one and put into the oven until the white is cooked.

Season well and cover each one with a good Bachelme sauce, made of milk, flour, eggs and cheese. Put into the oven again for a moment and serve at once.

Mary Talbot Hays,

Dear Santa:

I am a little boy past 2 years old. My mamma is writing to you for me. Mamma takes me to Sunday school and church most all the time. I think I'm pretty good don't you? You didn't bring me very much last Christmas, and as I'm so much bigger this Christmas I think you ought to bring me a whole lot more.

I would like to have a gun, trumpet, little wagon, top, drum, and please don't forget a doll baby, cause I ain't got no baby to play with me. Be sure and bring all the candy you can carry, cause if I can't eat it all, daddy and mamma can. Please don't bring me any nuts, cause I don't like them.

Mamma says she would like to have a new dress, and I don't know what daddy wants, but you can just bring him a package of cigarettes and he will be satisfied.

Hoping to see you soon.
Your little boy,
Edwin Settles,
819 Elm Ave.

Dear Santa Claus:

I am patiently waiting for your arrival. I don't want you to forget me, so I will give you some idea of what I want.

I want a desk and chair, a toy victrola, a saxophone, a drum, a Charleston dancer and lots of candy, oranges, and nuts. Don't forget to leave lots of these at Goeller's grocery too because I buy lots of things there.

Mother wants a whip to use on me but you must forget it and bring her something else. Don't forget my sister. She wants a diamond ring. And last of all, my Daddy, bring him something nice.

I am one of your nice little friends.

LONDON METAL MEN SEE U. S. MISTAKEN ON TIN PRICE PLAN

LONDON, Dec. 15—(INS)—Metal brokers in London regard with dismay the construction placed by the United States upon statements recently made in this country concerning the proposed plan to stabilize the price of tin.

The proposed plan, as explained by the Tin Statistical and Research Bureau here is to stabilize tin at $1,500 a ton to conserve existing supplies and eliminate unnecessary uses of the metal. The plan does not, according to the bureau, contemplate restriction of production.

According to the Bureau, the plan has been misconstrued in the United States as an attempt by Great Britain, which controls 42% per cent of the world's tin output, to obtain virtual control of the situation and "squeeze" United States buyers accordingly.

A well known metal broker said: "The scheme is intended to be an advantage to all world users of tin. The suggested figure of $1,500 per ton is not a high one—it is a middle price intended to encourage what is urgently desired by everybody—maximum production all over the world, especially in fields that otherwise would not be exploited."

CLARA BOW STARS AT METROPOLITAN

"Hula"—and Clara Bow! The book was good, but wait until you see the motion picture. It's a ten strike!

"It's new. It's sparkling. It's crammed full of unusual situations. It provides a great vehicle for vivacious Clara Bow and, after all, it's the same Clara only even more so."

"Hula" opened at the Metropolitan theatre Wednesday night for a three day run. This same run is likely to be a long one because you and everyone else won't want to miss Paramount's latest production. It's a "natural"—from start to finish.

In the picture, Miss Bow wins the nickname "Hula" because of her proficiency in the native Hawaiian dance.

Cleve Brook, leading man, as an English engineer, provides the complications along with a lot of love and this is the foundation for a fast moving story that hasn't a single dragging minute.

History of Nation, in Doggerel, Features Hagerstown Almanack

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 15—(U. S.)—The Hagerstown Almanack is out. This unique publication, established in 1797, carries over the fire-side companion days of a century ago to thousands of farm homes in Maryland, Virginia and other Atlantic seaboard states.

Besides a "conjecture of the weather" for all of the 366 days of 1923, the quaint volume contains:

"The rising, setting and eclipses of the Sun and Moon, the phases, places and southing of the Moon; the aspects of the planets; the rising, setting and southing of the most conspicuous planets and fixed stars; the equation of time; with a variety of useful and entertaining matter, anecdotes, a list of Courts, etcetera."

The publication contains a formal notice that the "Hagerstown Town and Country Almanack" will be continued by the family of John Gruber who published it for many years. Gruber died several months ago.

History of the nation is summarized in a bit of doggerel, entitled "Our Presidents." It is as follows: "First stands the lofty Washington

ENGLISH SCHOOLBOYS TO SPEND CHRISTMAS AT KENT COLLEGE

LONDON, Dec. 15—(INS)—Noises Ten English schoolboys are going to be taken from old-world surroundings at Radley College with its park and its Queen Anne Mansion, four miles from Oxford—and transplanted for five weeks to Kent College, Connecticut.

The boys will reach America just before Christmas and their trip, unique for an English school, will be watched with the closest interest. King George is greatly struck with the idea and emphatically approves such visits.

"The trip was first proposed by Father Still, the head of Kent College," says Rev. W. H. Ferguson, who presides over Radley, when he was over here with the crew sent to compete at Henley. They failed there, but, as they were anxious to row against one of the English "public" schools, a match was arranged with Radley. The American lads won.

"They stayed at Radley with us for 24 hours and then, a few weeks ago, we received a pressing invitation to send over a party of our boys for the Christmas vacation. Most of the boys who rowed against Kent College will be in the party, but they will not row during their stay in the United States."

"It is a wonderful opportunity for the boys, and naturally they are delighted. Parties of schoolboys have gone abroad to Canada and South Africa, before, but this is the first time that one school has definitely invited another school in this way."

PLAN TO BAR TEACHERS FAILS IN WASHINGTON

OLYMPIA, WASH., Dec. 15—(UP)—A plan to bar school teachers from Washington state unless they receive their training in state institutions has fallen by the wayside.

The old board of education passed a resolution making such requirements effective Jan. 1, 1928. The new board, at a recent meeting rescinded the resolution and referred the matter to the legislature which meets in 1929.

LONDON FARMER KILLED

LONDON, O., Dec. 15—(INS)—J. C. Starbuck, 53, farmer, was killed today when his automobile crashed with another machine at the intersection of the London-Marysville road and the National pike, four miles north of here. The driver of the other car, who was said to have been from Akron, was not hurt and was not held responsible for the accident.

NOISE COSTS BRITAIN 5 MILLION A WEEK; U. S. TWICE AS MUCH

RADLEY, Eng., Dec. 15—(INS)—cost Great Britain the astonishing sum of five million dollars a week. A sum approximately as high as that paid out for the upkeep of the British Navy for the same period of time. It is estimated that noise costs the United States nearly double this sum, or $50,000,000 a year, as the "Yankees" are supposed to make nearly twice as much racket as do the British.

Pointing out what an extreme menace to health the roar of civilization has become, Pressor Spooner, an authority on industrial fatigue, discussing the situation recently said:

"It is a fallacy to think that people become so accustomed to noise that they no longer notice it, it is harmless to them. The nerve force suffers in any case, and noise, whether heard or not, is the most inveterate thief of health."

Up to the present little has been done to combat this new menace, but efforts are being made to induce the medical organization of the League of Nations to take up the question in the cause of humanity.

NEW PROPELLER TO BE PLACED ON TEST

LONDON, Dec. 15—(UP)—Tests are to be made shortly with a new "variable pitch" airplane propeller which it is expected will permit of vastly greater speeds at high altitudes than is at present possible with the "fixed pitch" propellers now in use.

In the new propeller which is the invention of the British scientists, H. S. Hele-Shaw and T. E. Beacham, the pitch of the propeller blade is automatically varied with the speed of the engine so that the work performed by the propeller is always maintained at its highest efficiency. The mechanism changing the pitch is operated by an oil pump driven by the engine.

Elson Art Exhibit

The Elson Art Exhibit at the Circleville high school gives an excellent opportunity to everyone of seeing the works of the best known artists at close view. The exhibition is very complete and so arranged as to be easily studied. The pictures are placed so that the artists of each country are displayed side by side, and can easily be contrasted in matters of beauty, detail and general characteristics.

The ushers, at the building, who are teachers and pupils, identify each picture and give a brief history of them in which interest is shown, and Wednesday night there was quite a variety of opinions expressed by the people who were there.

The Dutch and French art, which has always been admired, was particularly popular. Hobbema's painting, "Avenue Middelhorst," is one of best known, as well as Van Dyke's "Baby Stuart."

In the French display comes the famous painting of Rosa Bonheur, "The Horse Fair," with the beautiful Percheron horses. There are several paintings of the famous Corot, whose works are the result of a highly imaginative mind. "Dance of the Nymphs," being one of the most beautiful. There are also pictures of Breton, Cazin, and Millet, and many other well known French artists.

"The Parthenon," among the Greek architecture, and "The Aphrodite," among the sculptures, are other pictures of interest and a nature view of Matterhorn, the peak in the Alps, is especially worthy of a little study.

Two of the colorful Spanish types are the "Prince Don Baltazar Carlos" and "The Tapestry Weavers," the latter being the masterpiece of Velasquez.

Then Madison is fourth you know The fifth one on the list, Monroe; The sixth, then Adams comes again And Jackson, seventh in the train Van Buren, eighth upon the line And Harrison counts number nine. The tenth is Tyler in his turn. And Polk the eleventh, as we learn.

The twelfth is Taylor in routine, The thirteenth Fillmore in succession; The fourteenth Pierce has been selected, Buchanan, fifteenth, is elected; Sixteenth, seventeenth, fills the station As the eighteenth, Grant, two terms serves Nineteenth, Hayes our honor pre-serves; Twentieth, Garfield, becomes our head; Twenty-first, Arthur, succeeds the dead; Then Cleveland next was selected, Twenty-third, Harrison's elected; Twenty-fourth, Cleveland is recalled; Twenty-fifth, McKinley twice installed; Twenty-sixth, Roosevelt, strenuous, firm; Tail, twenty-seventh, serves his term; Twenty-eighth, Wilson, held the place; Harding yields to death's embrace, Coolidge follows in his stead.

This outline of history is anonymous. Members of the Gruber family have added to it, as new presidents appeared, carrying out the tradition of never repeating the brief action words of the administrations. A modern trend has been noted in recent years by readers of the Almanac, however. "One of the principal faults of American farm houses," says this year's issue pointedly, "is that they haven't any plumbing."

NOISE COSTS BRITAIN 5 MILLION A WEEK; U. S. TWICE AS MUCH

RADLEY, Eng., Dec. 15—(INS)—cost Great Britain the astonishing sum of five million dollars a week. A sum approximately as high as that paid out for the upkeep of the British Navy for the same period of time. It is estimated that noise costs the United States nearly double this sum, or $520,000,000 a year, as the "Yankees" are supposed to make nearly twice as much racket as do the British.

Pointing out what an extreme menace to health the roar of civilization has become, Pressor Spooner, an authority on industrial fatigue, discussing the situation recently said:

"It is a fallacy to think that people become so accustomed to noise that they no longer notice it, it is harmless to them. The nerve force suffers in any case, and noise, whether heard or not, is the most inveterate thief of health."

Up to the present little has been done to combat this new menace, but efforts are being made to induce the medical organization of the League of Nations to take up the question in the cause of humanity.

NEW PROPELLER TO BE PLACED ON TEST

LONDON, Dec. 15—(UP)—Tests are to be made shortly with a new "variable pitch" airplane propeller which it is expected will permit of vastly greater speeds at high altitudes than is at present possible with the "fixed pitch" propellers now in use.

In the new propeller which is the invention of the British scientists, H. S. Hele-Shaw and T. E. Beacham, the pitch of the propeller blade is automatically varied with the speed of the engine so that the work performed by the propeller is always maintained at its highest efficiency. The mechanism changing the pitch is operated by an oil pump driven by the engine.

TILDEN BELIEVED LOST TO DAVIS CUP TEAM

STELLAR TENNIS PLAYER FOUGHT BY ASSOCIATION

"All Sports" Will Be Represented at Gathering in Madison Square Garden.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Mr. Bill Tilden, who may or may not amount to something in deciding whether we recover or do not recover the Davis cup, has announced himself as being willing to compete in Europe while our harrowing amateurs are doing the best they can in America. The writer has information that Tilden will not be a member of the team at all or in any part.

He got this information from a member of the lawn tennis association and to divulge the latter's identity would be a breach of confidence.

"When a man pulls a gun on you, what do you do?" inquired an official of the tennis association today. "If you can get rid of him, you do. That's all I have to say about Mr. Tilden's speculation."

Tilden Seems Out

If that is not enough to indicate that Tilden and Hunter are through with Davis cup play, then all we need is a bit of imagination to assume that a foreign power, with everything in its favor, might expect an assault

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion contains a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

HERMAN vs. HANLON
By DOC REID

Twenty-two years ago today, Kid Herman of Chicago and Eddie Hanlon, of San Francisco, two leading contenders for titular honors in the lightweight class, met in the ring at Los Angeles in a battle for the right to meet Joe Gans, colored champion, in a titular match.

The affair attracted the interest of fight followers throughout the land and ranked as one of the leading sport events of the year. At the end of the scheduled 20 rounds, Herman was awarded the decision and by virtue of his victory was matched with Gans for a finish fight at Tonopah, Nov. 13 months later, Gans winning by a knockout in eight rounds.

from a young inexperienced American team.

What I mean to say is that Tilden and Hunter, right now, are out. Whether they stay out or not is up to the United States Lawn Tennis association. The latter makes no particular bones about the fact that Tilden and Hunter are persona non grata. The reaction from the tennis association is that if Mr. Tilden desires to play tennis abroad he may do so purely as an individual.

Puts Up Issue

This puts the issue purely up to Tilden and Hunter. The latter is just a play-along boy, doing the best he can, and following Tilden's moves. Tilden is the abiding factor in this fight, if any, against the tennis association and the tennis association's reply is directed against him.

Somehow, Tilden has a phobia for antagonizing people. He has done it before with the tennis association. Maybe he will do it again. Maybe he won't get the chance. Maybe he won't, because it is barely possible the tennis association will go on and that Bill Tilden, greatest of all American players, if not in the world, will not.

THE PERILS OF PROFESSIONALISM

Apparently the German athletic authorities were not ill-advised in their opposition to Dr. Otto Peltzer's visit to this country.

Before the noted middle distance runner had so much as set foot upon American soil, he encountered one of those snares which occasionally entrap the unwary amateur and turn him into a perfectly terrible professional with whom good little athletes no longer may associate.

When Peltzer arrived, he was met aboard the North German Lloyd liner by a group of journalists, including one of his own race who obtained from him an "exclusive photograph" of the doctor in running togs training on the deck of the Berlin. This photograph, according to the testimony of other reporters, the German journalist promptly offered for sale, naming $50 as the price.

Now had such a sale been made, the finger of suspicion must inevitably have swung around to the direction of Dr. Peltzer. Amateurs may do many things, but collaborating in the sale of their photographs is taboo.

Realizing the danger, the journalist announced later that he had not offered to see the photograph, adding that "anyway, Peltzer knew nothing about it."

Nothing came of the incident, of course, but it was a close shave. It was, to say the least, an inauspicious start for the German athlete's American visit.

The question of how long a time must elapse before a professional can be washed white as the driven snow and restored to good standing in any given athletic community has been raised again in France.

The French are not worrying very much about the Olympic Games, however, except to wonder where the money to support a team is coming from. What interests France is retention of the Davis Cup.

Although well equipped as to cup defenders in the person of Rene LaCoste, Jean Borotra, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, the French are going to leave no stone unturned to keep the cup which they carried away from the courts of Germantown last fall.

Having an idea that Paul Feret, the young French professional, might possibly come in handy in amateur circles, LaCoste and the other musketeers went before the tennis federation and suggested that Feret be declared an amateur once more.

The customary formality in such cases requires an athlete who has lapsed from grace to do five years of penance before regaining his or her amateurism.

"Let's waive the formality in Feret's case," suggested LaCoste. "He didn't make very much money out of C. C. Pyie, anyway."

But it seems that young Mr. Feret at one time had been guilty of speaking out of turn. Upon accepting a lucrative offer from C. C. Pyie to turn pro, he had remarked:

Well, anyway, I'd rather be an honest professional than a heavy sugar amateur, like some of my friends."

As far as the federation is concerned, Mr. Feret remains an honest professional.

Putting One Over

Two little girls were saying their prayers prior to being tucked in for the night. When both had finished the younger of the two climbed on her mother's knee and said: "Mother, Clara only asked for her 'daddy bread.' I asked for 'bread and jam.'"

Cause of Heartburn

Heartburn is not due to acid stomachs, or any condition of the stomach contents, but to a muscular distension of the digestive tract itself, and can be controlled by medicine, according to two noted American physicians.

Birds are divided into groups in much the same way as mammals, says Nature Magazine. The crows, ravens, jays and magpies are usually included in the crow family, Corvidae. The bill is the best common character.

Nothing can bring you peace but yourself. Nothing can bring you peace but the triumph of principles.—Emerson.

THE GREAT WAR TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

—UP—

DEC. 15, 1917.

Emperor Wilhelm of Germany, in a Christmas message, proposes to make a final peace offer to his enemies "on whom, in case they reject, will fall responsibility for the bloodshed in 1918."

Col. E. M. House returns to the U. S., from Europe and declares that the Inter-Allied meeting in Paris was a great success, but that peace talk did not enter these discussions.

CHAMPIONS WILL BE HONORED AT ANNUAL DINNER

Court Athlete May Be Forced To Tour Europe With Only Hunter's Company.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(INS)—With the purpose of perpetuating an "all sports" annual gathering in New York at a notable public affair, the Madison Square Garden club has invited leaders in many branches of amateur and professional sports to attend the "first annual all world's champions dinner" at the hotel Commodore, on Jan. 4.

This will be the anniversary of the testimonial dinner given to Tex Rickard last winter by the club which is composed of prominent stockholders in the Madison Square Garden Corporation. It is hoped to make this dinner fixture on the New York calendar.

Several champions have already accepted their invitations. Gene Tunney promises to return from Florida to be present and William F. Tilden will represent Tennis as the highest ranking player in this country. Babe Ruth will sit in for baseball, Bobby Jones for golf and Johnny Weissmuller for swimming. Polo's representative will be Devereaux Milburn. Hockey, basketball, track and field—in fact every branch of sport—will send headliners.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh has promised to represent aviation if his business engagements will permit.

Mayor Jimmy Walker will act as toastmaster and among the speakers will be Hon. Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives, and Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate.

James I. Bush is chairman of the dinner committee which includes Charles H. Sabin, Bernard Gimbel and Walter P. Chrysler.

Roup Easily Controlled by Proper Management

Contagious roup is very easily spread from one bird to another by contact through the feed, water and litter. Roup is easily controlled by proper management and housing. Damp, insanitary, poorly ventilated, overcrowded, drafty quarters are conducive to its spread. Only valuable birds should receive individual treatment. Place bird in a dry, well ventilated place and give it plenty of fresh air and feed. Every morning and evening remove all the cheesy matter from the eyes and nostrils of the bird and dip its head into a solution of bichloride of mercury (1-1000). This is made by placing one 7-3-grain bichloride of mercury tablet in a pint of water. Hold the bird firmly; and immerse the head until the eyes are covered, keeping it there a few seconds, or until it struggles.

SHARP POINTS

Distance fliers should know the stars, a Cornell university professor says. Wonder if he means the fixed stars above or the shooting stars of sudden contact with things below.—Martins Ferry, O. Times.

Some folks live on the fat of the land. We might include those who sell reducing systems.—Youngstown O. Vindicator.

Women soon will be receiving as much salary as men, says an economic observer. Lots of women are getting men's wages now.—Lima, O. News.

Many a man can carry a cigar in his vest pocket for months without it being broken.—Cincinnati, O. Tribune.

A man is an accomplished idler when he can stand and watch something for hours.—Ashland, O. Times Gazette.

People stayed home in the old days, but that was before there were so many bill collectors to call.—Wooster, O. Record.

All of next year's automobiles will come equipped with the standard grumble seat.—Dayton, O. Herald.

Dull Talk

Blunt statements usually have sharp edges.—Ferry and Fireside.

Way of the Pessimist

A pessimist is willing to bet the first thing that rolls out of a horn of plenty will be an unripe cantaloupe.—Toledo Blade.

Agricultural Notes

Leaves and trash which are burned can add no humus to the soil; better compost them.

Best results are obtained when time for alfalfa is applied before the seed is sowed if the soil is sour, for lime acts slowly.

Portland cement is so fine that more than 78 per cent of it will pass through a screen having 10,000 holes to the square inch.

Many farmers have small concrete mixers which they use in their construction work. The machines can also be used for home mixing of fertilizers and feed.

For young pigs skim milk or butter-milk is better than tankage, to balance corn. They will soon fail to thrive on corn and tankage if they get no green feed.

If you are in doubt as to whether certain water is suitable for use in making concrete ask yourself: "Is it good enough to drink?" If it is, it can safely be used in concrete.

Census Taking

The Constitution of the United States requires that a population census be taken decennially.

IN CHUBBY WORLD

WHEN Chubbies play with things and toys, They make the proper kind of noise. But they aren't rough, nor quarrelsome, Nor are their manners cross and glum. If heads get bumped, or some one tumbles, You hear no screams nor useless grumbles. A Chub says, "Ho! A laugh will heal A thump far sooner than a squeal."

Feeding Young Boar to Use in Breeding Season

Did you buy a boar pig at the fair and, if so, what provision have you made to bring him up to breeding season, in tiptop, thrifty condition? As a rule, less attention is given a boar than his importance requires. Too often any kind of a pen that will hold a boar is the kind he gets. Exercise and correct feeding are of greatest importance. Enough exercise is usually induced by plenty of range in the place he is kept. A boar pig to be used late in the fall should have the same combination of feeds used for gilts. Green feed and limited corn supplemented with skim milk or a mixture of tankage 70 parts, linseed meal 15 parts, and shorts 15 parts is good feeding. Close confinement and too much corn is a bad combination.

If vines, cornstalks and other truck aren't gathered up and burned they'll shelter insects through the winter that'll make you grief next season.

Pumpkins and squashes should be allowed to ripen and harden but not freeze. Well matured specimens should then be stored on racks or shelves in a dry, warm room.

Paving of feed lots is an investment that pays good dividends. If a complete program of paving the entire lot cannot be carried out, there are certain places that should be by all means paved.

Agricultural Items

Next to wheat, potatoes are the most important crop grown for human food.

Hot Water Bottle

Always expel the air from the hot-water bottle after you pour the water into it by gently pressing the bottle upward toward the stopper. Never fill the bottle more than two-thirds full.

To Each His Part

The world is a theater upon which each one wishes to show himself to the best advantage; and to play his part well, it is but to let each play his own.—Diogenes.

Tin Plate Formation

The bureau of standards says that tin plate, as the term is used commercially, refers to sheet steel or iron which has been coated with a thin layer of tin.

Primitive Banks

Hiding money in the ground is so prevalent in Ethiopia that although about 6,000,000 silver dollars are sent there from Austria every year, there are never more than 7,000,000 in circulation.

Roup Easily Controlled

by Proper Management

Contagious roup is very easily spread from one bird to another by contact through the feed, water and litter. Roup is easily controlled by proper management and housing. Damp, insanitary, poorly ventilated, overcrowded, drafty quarters are conducive to its spread. Only valuable birds should receive individual treatment. Place bird in a dry, well-ventilated place and give it plenty of fresh air and feed. Every morning and evening remove all the cheesy matter from the eyes and nostrils of the bird and dip its head into a solution of bichloride of mercury (1-4000). This is made by placing one 7-3-grain bichloride of mercury tablet in a pint of water. Hold the bird firm, and immerse the head until the eyes are covered, keeping it there a few seconds, or until it struggles.

Agricultural Notes

Leaves and trash which are burned can add no humus to the soil; better compost them.

Best results are obtained when lime for alfalfa is applied before the seed is sowed if the soil is sour, for lime acts slowly.

Portland cement is so fine that more than 78 per cent of it will pass through a screen having 40,000 holes to the square inch.

Many farmers have small concrete mixers which they use in their construction work. The machines can also be used for home mixing of fertilizers and feed.

For young pigs skinned or butter-milk is better than tankage, to balance corn. They will soon fail to thrive on corn and tankage if they get no green feed.

If you are in doubt as to whether certain water is suitable for use in mixing concrete ask yourself: "Is it good enough to drink?" If it is, it can safely be used in concrete.

Census Taking

The Constitution of the United States requires that a population census be taken decennially.

IN CHUBBY WORLD

WHEN Chubbies play with things and toys, They make the proper kind of noise. But they aren't rough, nor quarrelsome, Nor are their manners cross and glum. If heads get bumped, or some one tumbles, You hear no screams nor useless grumbles. A Chub says, "Ho! A laugh will heal A thump far sooner than a squeal."

Feeding Young Boar to Use in Breeding Season

Did you buy a boar pig at the fair and, if so, what provision have you made to bring him up to breeding season, in tip-top, thrifty condition? As a rule, less attention is given a boar than his importance requires. Too often any kind of a pen that will hold a boar is the kind he gets. Exercise and correct feeding are of greatest importance. Enough exercise is usually induced by plenty of range in the place he is kept. A boar pig to be used late in the fall should have the same combination of feeds used for gilts. Green feed and limited corn supplemented with skim milk or a mixture of tankage 70 parts, linseed meal 15 parts, and shorts 15 parts is good feeding. Close confinement and too much corn is a bad combination.

Agricultural Items

Next to wheat, potatoes are the most important crop grown for human food.

Hot Water Bottle

Always expel the air from the hot-water bottle after you pour the water into it by gently pressing the bottle upward toward the stopper. Never fill the bottle more than two-thirds full.

To Each His Part

The world is a theater upon which each one wishes to show himself to the best advantage; and to play his part well, it is but to let each play his own.—Diogenes.

Tin Plate Formation

The bureau of standards says that tin plate, as the term is used commercially, refers to sheet steel or iron which has been coated with a thin layer of tin.

Primitive Banks

Hiding money in the ground is so prevalent in Ethiopia that although about 6,000,000 silver dollars are sent there from Austria every year, there are never more than 7,000,000 in circulation.

PLEASURE TRIP IN AIR LINER TO BEGIN JAN. 31

3-Engined Plane Leaving Croydon For a Pleasure Cruise of 35 Days.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(INS).—The first air pleasure cruise ever to be undertaken will begin on Jan. 31, when a large three-engined air liner will leave the Croydon Airdrome for a thirty-five days' tour over Southern France, Spain, Northern Africa and Italy.

The machine, one of the "silver wings" craft which operates as a daily luxury service between London and Paris, will carry twelve passengers. The fare will be $2,175 per passenger, and this will include the finest hotel accommodations, including meals, tips, admission fees for sight-seeing, car and baggage transport, between air-dromes and hotels, service of English-speaking representatives at all places, and payment of foreign hotel taxes.

Meals Served

In addition to a pilot and engineer, a uniformed steward will travel in the machine, to cater to the needs of the passengers. Meals and light refreshments will be served to the aerial passengers, while the plane is winging its way at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

Each of the 12 passengers will be permitted to carry sixty pounds of luggage, and additional baggage may be sent ahead to be picked up on arrival at Algiers and Naples.

In describing the extraordinary flight, an official of the Imperial Airways told International News Service:

ROADS OF COUNTY INUNDATED AGAIN

Prediction of Cold Weather and Snow Expected To Stop Rise of Streams.

The Scioto river reached its crest at 10 o'clock Thursday morning and touched thirteen feet ten inches. There is over a foot of water on the Zanesville-Cincinnati pike west of this city. All traffic has been detoured as the road is dangerous. Traffic to and from the city from the western portion of the county has been detoured over the Red river bridge and the Island Road.

The river has backed up north of Bloomfield and traffic south on the Scioto Trail is detoured by way of Ashville. South of this city on the Jackson pike, near Chillicothe, traffic is detoured over the Kingston pike. The Scioto Trail south of this city is still open.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15.—(UP).—Dropping temperatures today were believed to have forestalled a further rise in Ohio rivers and creeks which, fed by heavy rains, were threatening to leave their banks yesterday.

Although some streams still were raging today, no rainfall was reported and an immediate cessation of the streams began. Minor rains were predicted for today, but falling temperatures tonight will turn them to snow, weather bureau officials said.

LETTERS DELUGE HUSBAND SLAYER

Missives of Sympathy and Condemnation Pour Into Cell of Velma West.

PAINESVILLE, O., Dec. 15.—(UP).—Letters of sympathy, of cheer and of condemnation—hundreds of them—began pouring in a veritable flood today to Velma West, Lake county's confessed hammer slayer of her wealthy husband, T. Edward West. A hundred or more of the epistles, bearing postmarks from cities in pretty nearly every state in the Union were received yesterday.

"We're censoring the letters, of course," the sheriff explained. "But most of them are being turned over to Mrs. West," he added.

One woman correspondent said she was "thoroughly familiar with the life of an oppressed wife and didn't much blame one for rebelling, even with a claw hammer." She offered sympathy as many others did.

On the other hand, there were those who expressed no sympathy at all, having nothing but strong condemnation for the slaying to which the young Cleveland girl has confessed.

Mrs. West regained composure today, after two physicians says of hysteria. She talked more freely today than at any time since her imprisonment a little more than a week ago. She appeared more cheerful. Her sleep last night was more sound and she appeared this morning to have rested well.

Her counsel, Francis E. Poulson and Richard Bostwick, conferred for several hours here yesterday afternoon, announcing at the conclusion of the confab that the proposed habeas corpus action resigned to free their client on bond would not be filed until next week.

Alleged Rum Runner Shot In Gun Battle With Coast Guards In Michigan.

MONROE, MICH., Dec. 15.—(UP).—Alfred Raymond, alleged rum runner was in a hospital and his brother, Jed Raymond, both of Brest, Mich., were being held by coast guards, following a gun fight on the broad expanse of Lake Erie last night.

EXPLOSION OF GAS WRECKS OHIO PLANT

One Killed and 20 Injured In Blast At Carbon Company Works In Fostoria.

FOSTORIA, O., Dec. 15.—(UP).—An accumulation of gas, ignited in some undetermined manner, was responsible for the blast which wrecked the new plant of the National Carbon Company here late yesterday, killing one man and injuring 20 others, three seriously, officials said today.

Two hundred construction men, still completing unfinished sections of the new $1,000,000 structure, were working in the plant when the blast occurred. Mike Sekera, 33, Cleveland, pipe fitter, was killed almost outright.

Those seriously injured were, Lloyd Kutcher, 30; Eddie Ryan, 33, and John Davis, 34, all from Cleveland. Of the others, none was injured seriously although all were badly shaken.

A huge smoke stack, an adjunct of the new plant erected at a cost of $50,000, was razed.

INVESTIGATE STORY

ATHENS, O., Dec. 15.—(INS).—Police here were today investigating the story of Thaddeus Draper, held in jail here on a first degree murder charge, in the shooting to death of Mrs. Milton Cooper, 28, mother of five children, who told officers that the husband of the woman fired the shot which killed her. The shooting followed a fight over a revolver.

Origin of Fleur de Lis

The use of the fleur de lis as a symbol of royalty cannot be traced further back than the Twelfth century, and it is probably not of French origin. It is said to occur in headdresses of Egyptian sphinxes, and the symbol was in olden times an ornament of Greek, Roman, Spanish and English kings.
